

The Antique Market

It is a fashionable thing to do these days to put on a blue blazer and join the thousands of visitors to the Aberfoyle market. Each Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the village of Aberfoyle on Highway Six is lined with cars and people poke their way through the piles of antiques — or treasures.

A popular feature of the market is the community of over 25 craftspeople demonstrate and sell their work from pottery, jewellery, pine furniture, and toys to batik, macrame, plants, weaving, quilts and more.

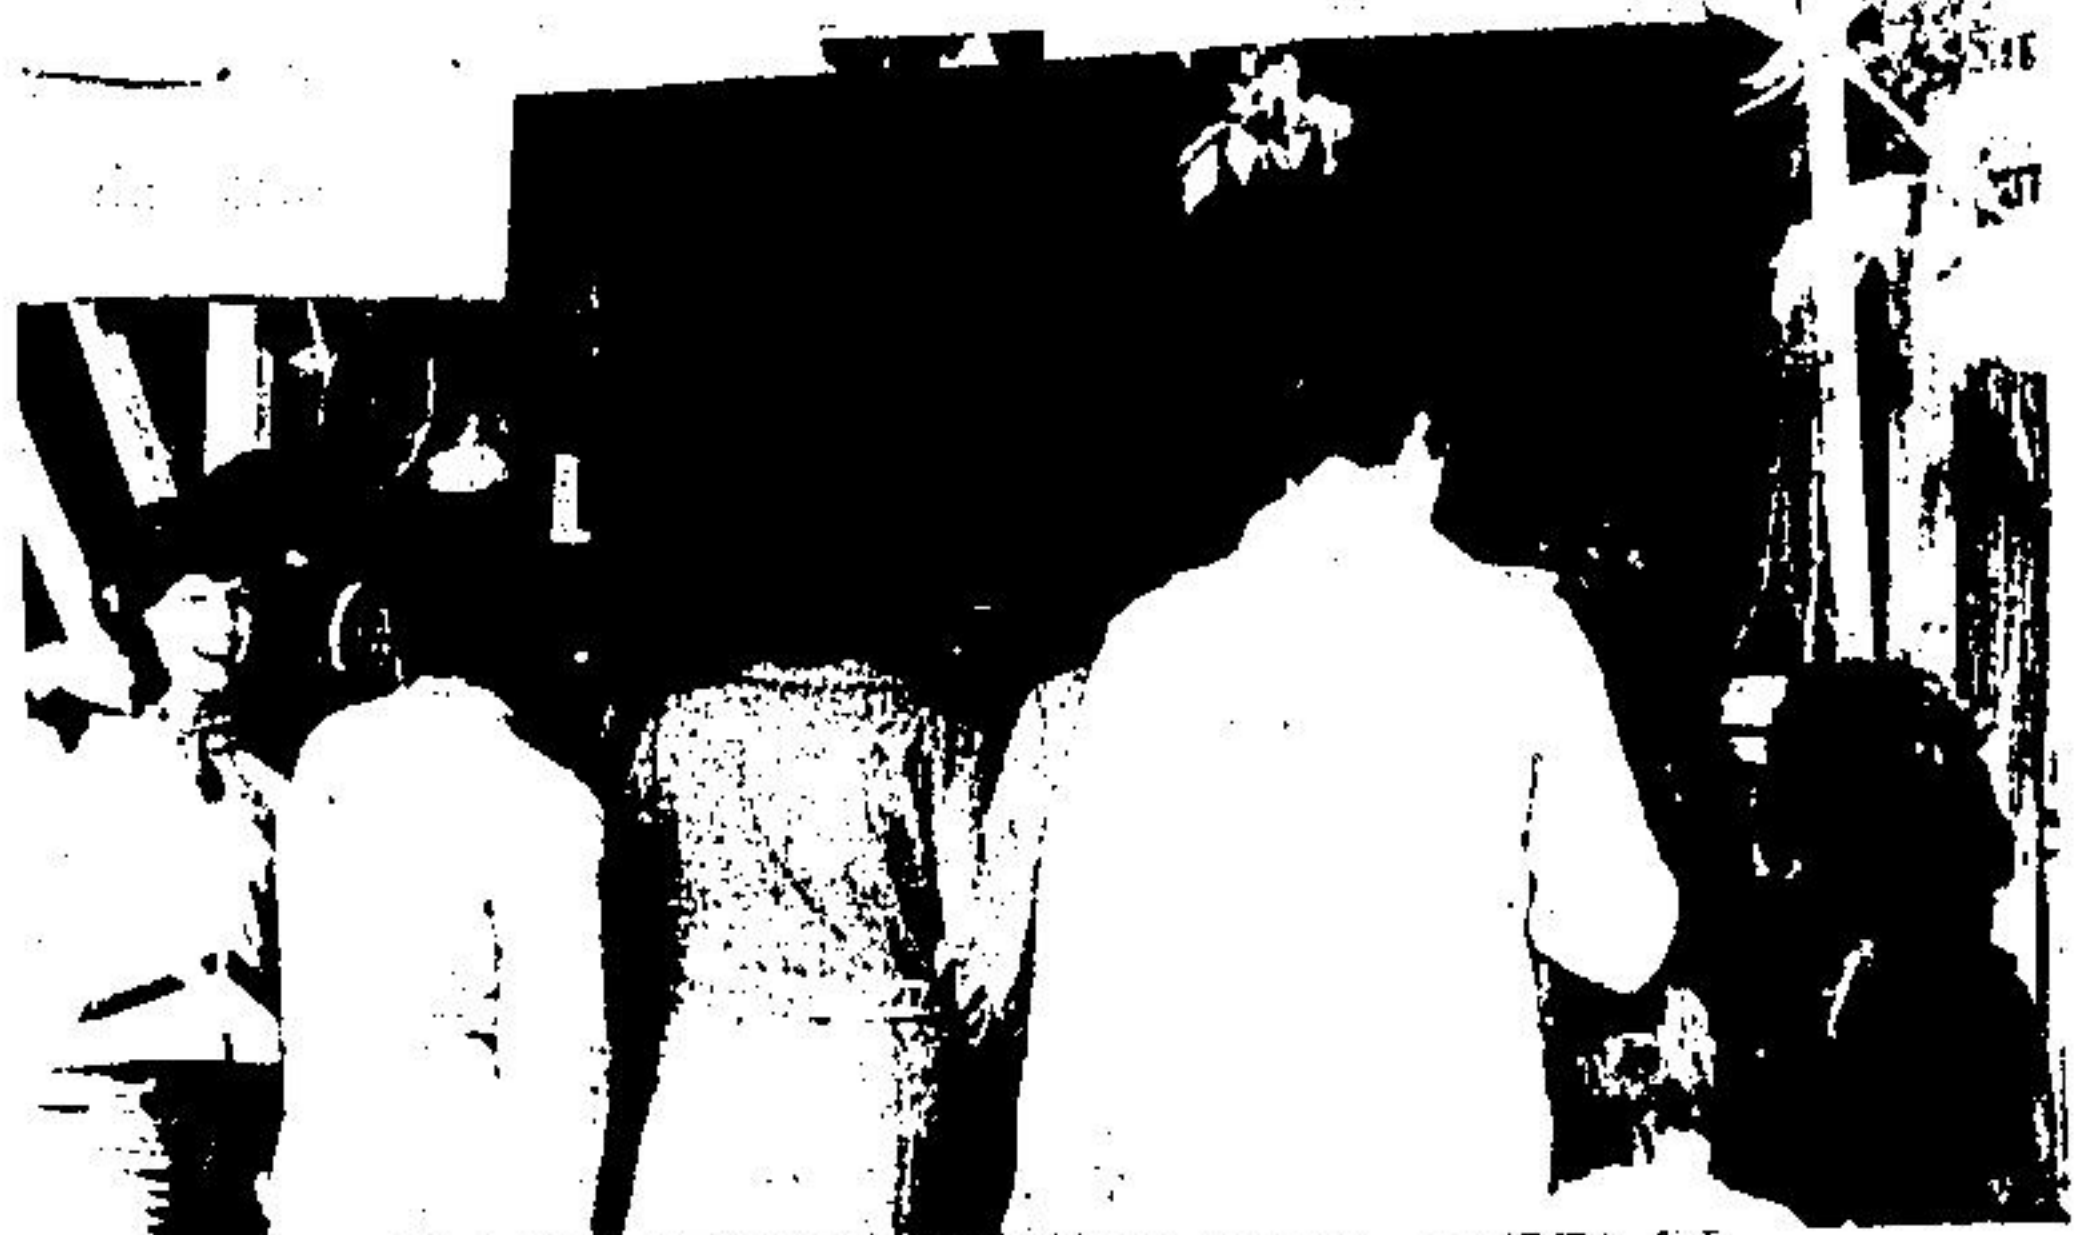

Aberfoyle General Store features local produce, foods, crafts and unusual, hard-to-find items. Slaughterhouse serves home cooked meals to be eaten inside or out. It's also open as a coffee house Saturday and Sunday nights featuring Canadian music. For the young visitor, Aberfoyle is a living history lesson. For older folk it's a trip down memory lane.

Strolling through the hundreds of booths at Aberfoyle is a fun way to spend a Sunday.

by Joyce Beaton

It gets pretty crowded sometimes as each Sunday close to 3,000 people stroll through the antique market and artisans' village at Aberfoyle.

Brothers play with an old camera they found for sale at the market and pretend to be taking each other's picture.

This young couple found the old wicker baby carriage an interesting plaything.

You never know what will hit your fancy when you visit the antique market. In the background is the Slaughterhouse.