Plaques point to history

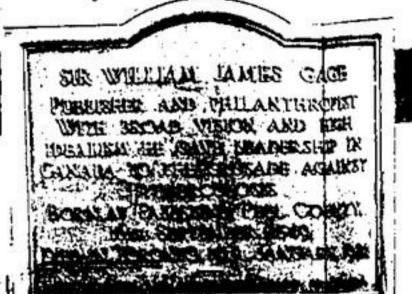

Each year thousands of tourists travel around the province seeking out history and Queen's Park supplies many kinds of brochures which help the motorists find it.

Many tour brochures deal with historical plaques. This summer travellers following pamphlets will find themselves in or around

Halton discovering our past.

Historical plaques point out our history. If a plan revealed by Industry and Tourism Minister Claude Bennett two years ago on a visit to Georgetown designating Highway 7 as a Heritage Highway through North Halton such as Highway 2 through South Halton ever materializes, there should be even more historical plaques to attract visitors.
