

Bill Karolidis cooking at the Delrex Restaurant.

Restaurant here 17 years

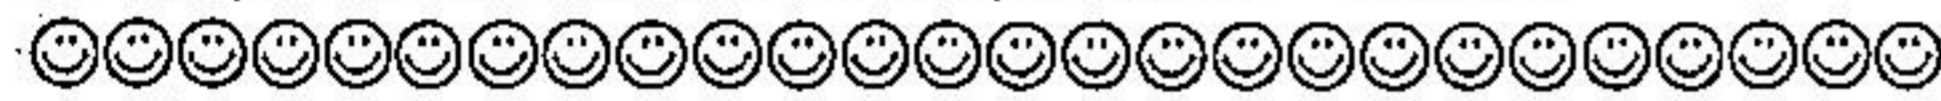

Delrex Restaurant has been run by the Karolidis family since 1959. Angelo, Bill and father Louis all cook. Five waitresses, who also work at the bar, complete the staff. The restaurant was remodelled and made into a tavern in 1973. Previously, it had been a favorite with young people who would stop to meet friends for cokes and french fries. Now the clientele has changed to also accommodate adults and business is even better.

The Delrex Restaurant is also a bus depot. Although it can be inconvenient, the Karolidis family is glad to offer this service to the people of Georgetown and fellow merchants of the Market Centre.

"We are very fond of Georgetown," says Bill Karolidis, and this feeling is reciprocated, for 17 years is a long time to remain a popular restaurant.

Delrex Smoke Shop is a favorite stop.

Smoke Shop thriving

Thirteen years ago H. K. Harris bought the existing smoke shop to satisfy his desire for his own business. It has remained a family enterprise ever since.

The store carries a variety of items. There is milk, butter, eggs, as well as candy, chocolate and chips. Magazines, gifts, film and tobacco are available. There is also a post office in the store.

Bicycles scattered outside the store indicate the shop's popularity with children. Indeed, about half the store has items designed for them.

While the store is conveniently open seven days a week, its busiest days are Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Business does not vary seasonally, with the exception of Christmas, when the Delrex Smoke Shop does a booming trade.

SCRIPTION

Prescription counter at Shopper's Drug Mart is a busy place.

Shopper's Drug employs 20

In 1972 Georgetown Market Centre housed Shopper's Drug Mart, one of a chain of similar stores reaching coast to coast with roughly 270.

The Georgetown branch employs 20 people. Three are pharmacists, including the associate in charge of this store, Ian Sussman.

Three departments, pharmacy, cosmetics and general merchandise, are doing well. Sale of prescriptions depend to a great extent on the weather. Sales increase during damp, chilly days.

Trained, qualified cosmet-icians work in the cosmetics department. Shopper's Drug Mart has products under its own name and that of Life Brand.

Everything considered, Shopper's Drug Mart has the largest selection of drug goods in Georgetown.
