Plan meeting

Learning Disabilities Week was observed the past week. There is a chapter in Wellington county, and its members are hoping to arrange a "meet the parents' night" in Acton some time. There are children in this area involved. One in 10 children has some degree of learning problems. This makes 600 in Wellington county, some of them in this area.

The Ontario Association for Children with Learning Disabilities (O.A.C.L.D.) was formed in 1963 by parents who were unable to learn in the standardized classroom and who had sought and found programs through major universities in the United States. Their experience in these centres led them to form an association.
