

Committee finds

Bookmobile service preferred

The need for extended library service in Wards one and three was indicated in the results of a questionnaire sent to residents by a citizens group and filed in summary with the Milton Council and Milton Library Board this week.

The interest supported the idea of a bookmobile type of service but recognized that other types of library service "would prove to be uneconomical and difficult to administer."

The citizens committee, which was responsible for the distribution of 600 questionnaires in Ward One (Trafalgar) and 1450 in Ward Three (Nassagaweya), noted the lack of public transportation prevented many citizens from using the Central Library in urban Milton.

"A van type bookmobile of sufficient size would be needed for this purpose. It would appear possible that community halls, church basements or schools, could be used at various times during the week for activity programs such as: story hours, films, puppet shows, crafts, magic shows, etc. These programs should be initiated and controlled by the Central Library. Interested citizens within the areas, should be contacted and involved."

The report recognized that the Central Library would have to improve its book collection, enlarge its staff and actively communicate with the public. Immediate funding would be necessary. The committee regarded the response rate to the questionnaires as good, with 8.1 per cent being returned from ward one and 10.3 per cent being returned from ward three.

Ward three earlier had a library in Campbellville, started in 1968 by a group of citizens. In 1972-73 the Nassagaweya Library Board was formed and funded from provincial grants. In 1974, with the inception of regional government, the library came under the jurisdiction of the Milton Library Board. It was transferred in late 1973 to the Campbellville Community Centre. In July 1976 due to budget restraints, it was closed.

Public reaction, early this year, led to the formation of the citizens' committee that circulated the questionnaires.

The questionnaires went to 1450 on R.R. 1, Acton; Campbellville and rural routes 1, 2, 3, Moffat R.R. 1, Milton R.R. 2, 3 and 6; Milton Heights and Rockwood R.R. 2.

From the 150 responses the committee learned those not previously using the Campbellville library were new in the area and not aware of the service, no transportation was available, greater selection was available at larger libraries or they had their own personal libraries or were not inclined to reading.

The reason for not using the Milton Library was primarily distance (32 per cent); other libraries (6.7 per cent); book collection inadequate for needs (4 per cent); or personal libraries (3.3 per cent).

The projected interest was mainly in a bookmobile (30 per cent) while 15.33 per cent preferred a static book collection and 14.67 per cent preferred a revolving book drop.

In tabulating the figures, the committee detected a specific need for service north of 10 Sideroad with 25.33 per cent indicating they would use an extended service and 16.67 per cent preferring a bookmobile service.

The committee concluded "that an extended service of some type is definitely needed in many parts of ward three, and particularly so in that area of the ward north of 10 Sideroad. It would seem that a bookmobile making three or four stops would be preferred."

One R.R. 1, Moffat respondent said "The Milton Library is completely useless to anyone living in north Milton". An R.R. 1, Acton respondent suggested "Library service in Campbellville seems to be an unnecessary expense".

A Campbellville respondent suggested the hamlet was isolated transportation wise and is a growing community, so should have easy access to library services, part of which the residents already pay for."

"A bookmobile should cover the whole Nassagaweya area, not just Campbellville and Brookville," an R.R. 2, Rockwood respondent suggested.

Others indicated they preferred the larger selection of books at Milton or Guelph.

Those involved in the questionnaire program were D. Broomhouse, Mrs. G. Goldstraw and Mrs. I. Jennings in ward three and Mrs. J. W. Pickett and Mrs. J. W. Harris in ward one.

THOSE DARN VAN DAMS spent Monday afternoon cutting up away from school during the winter break. The recreation department has arranged public skating time during the break. Pictured are Tony, 9, and John, 6.
