The story in a nutshell! Raiders outclassed

by Denis Gibbons
In a mismatch similar to Sunday's 11-1 Soviet Union romp over Team Canada '77, Campbellton, New Brunswick, Tigers, an intermediate hockey club loaded with ex-pros, polished off Georgetown Chrysler Raiders in three straight games in the Eastern Canadian Intermediate "A" finals in Campbellton on the weekend.

Tigers, who have won 21 straight playoff games, trounced the OHA champion Raiders 5-1, Friday, 12-2 Saturday, and 8-3, Sunday in front of bored audiences at the Campbellton Memorial Gardens that started at 2000, Friday, but dwindled to just 800, Sunday.

There are no senior hockey teams in New Brunswick and only nine intermediate clubs in the entire province. The provincial intermediate champs traditionally enter the Hardy Cup playoffs, while the runners-up, strangely enough, are sent off to be massacred in the senior Allan Cup playoffs.

Halton Hills News and Views

Until the Spring of 1975, only two tennis courts existed in the Town of Halton Hills, to serve a population of better than 32,000. In a period of approximately six months (Spring-Fall, 1975) nine new tennis courts were developed in the Town to better handle the large numbers who were becoming interested in the sport of tennis.

Irene has resided in Georgetown for the past seven years and has been employed by the recreation and parks department for the last year and a half. For her leisure pursuits, Irene enjoys swimming, bowling, tennis and sewing.

Lorna and Dianne work out of the Acton office, located at 40 Mill Street E. Lorna has been a resident of Acton for the last 20 years. She has worked for the town for 17 of these years. With the birth of Halton Hills, Lorna's duties as a tax clerk were rearranged and she was assigned partly to the recreation department.

When she is not working, Lorna is involved in church activities and planning her yearly travels. Dianne has previously worked for the recreation department for 1 1/2 years. For the last six months she has been working part time over the lunch hours in the Acton office.

Dianne enjoys swimming and riding her bicycle in her leisure time. Halton Hills Arts Council This week we will also take a look at another community group. A meeting was held, September 19, 1976 for purposes of identifying the interest in, and need for, a united voice in Halton Hills for the performing arts—an Arts Council.

It was clearly evident that a Halton Hills Arts Council, was, and still is needed for reasons that include providing: a) a co-operative effort to promote cultural arts programs, b) input in advising Halton Hills Council on allocation of arts grants to local groups, c) a vehicle for involving new and other concerned citizens in a united effort to secure adequate facilities for cultural groups, d) assistance to you, as a creative individual or group, in applying for federal and/or provincial grants and subsidies, e) you with a clearing house for dates of community events and a reference file on local artists and organizations, f) and you with a quarterly newsletter and calendar of events.

The Arts Council is presently conducting a survey for purposes of identifying the feelings of our community with existing and proposed facilities, in addition to preparing for the release of their initial arts newsletter.

Anyone 18 years of age or over who joins a tennis club in town pays $1 to the Halton Hills Tennis Association. This money is spent to help develop this sport. Last year a successful tournament was held in August, and it is in the plans of the executive of the Halton Hills Tennis Association this year, that this tournament will be continued this summer.

This week's column will introduce the ladies working as secretaries for the recreation and parks department. Irene Little, Chris Rivett, Dianne Butler and Lorna Clarke. Both Irene and Chris work out of the area office at the east end of town. Irene serves as secretary to the director of recreation and the facilities superintendent. Chris handles most incoming calls to this area office, as well as handling the secretarial requirements of the recreation coordinator.

Chris has worked for the Corporation for the last 1 1/2 years and with the recreation and parks department, since February, 1976. A resident of Acton, Chris is a member of the Y's Menettes and enjoys horseback riding.
