42. HELP WANTED

TIRED OF TALKING TO FOUR WALLS

about what it's like to be without a job? If you are unemployed, the Brampton & District Labour Council wants to hear from you. We want to give you an outlet for the frustrations you and thousands of other jobless Canadians face. We want to bring the jobs together and give them a voice of their own. If you want to share in that voice. Tel. (416) 451-8310 from 8.30 to 4 P.M. The Brampton and District Labour Council want you to help yourself.

No consultants wanted by town

There will be no study of the town's operation by outside management consultants, if Halton Hills council agrees with a finance-administration committee recommendation.

Councillor Peter Morris found himself alone in wanting a consulting firm to study the town's operation. Councillors Walter Biehn, Pat Patterson and Roy Booth found nothing to their liking in the idea.

Patterson termed management consultants "head hunters" and said he had been that route several times. He claimed they would come back with whatever the department heads told them, and would make recommendations to justify the cost of the study. He claimed it could run as high as $50,000. He said the three firms mentioned were "big names in the business."

Clerk Administrator Doug Pritchard said he did not feel the study would mirror the views of department heads, and claimed a lot would depend on the terms of reference given the consulting firms.

Booth pointed out if a firm is hired council has to go along with all the recommendations and not pick and choose bits and pieces, or the money is wasted. "We either hire and accept all their recommendations or stop it right now and don't hire them."

He claimed they are likely to tell the town what they already know, and cited as an example the housing of all departments under one roof. "We already know we're short of space." He said council knows the weakest areas. "We hire department heads to tell us how to go about these things, if they can't do it they shouldn't be department heads."

He claimed the study would disrupt and worry staff and termed it a mistake.

Morris contended neither council nor staff can objectively look at themselves. He said "We don't know what we're doing wrong." He said the efficiency of council should also be looked at. He said he agreed if the consultant is hired the town has to follow the recommendations, or it is a waste of money.

Biehn warned the study would probably recommend more staff, and predicted it could be pigeon-holed after it is completed. He suggested three or four retired bank managers or business men might do the same thing for little money.

Chairman Russ Miller said he was concerned about the probable cost, and said he heard continual criticism on the number of studies.
