Plaza Variety opens officially on Saturday

by K. Chalmers
Rockwood Plaza Variety will officially open this Saturday morning, October 8 at 10 a.m. Chairman of the Village Trustees, Tony Reid will be on hand to cut the ribbon and two senior citizens will be invited to take part in the ceremony. The first 100 ladies to enter the store will receive a rose each and specials on Pepsi, Coke, 7-Up and milk will be featured. These specials begin Thursday, October 6.

PROPRIETORS AT Rockwood Plaza Variety are Frances Lockyer and Sheldon Blow. The couple describe their store as a Variety Store Plus — everything you need.

Owners of the store, Sheldon Blow and Fran Lockyer, hope to offer a little more than just a variety store. They feel they don't want to compete as much as expand service to village residents. Both feel because of their location, they should attract a strong transient clientele. However, Mr. Blow commented that he was pleasantly surprised with the faithful customers they had already attracted in the first few weeks. Mr. Blow was formerly co-ordinating engineer for Blow Press in Acton, manufacturer of heavy machinery. The store is a first-time experience for both parties. They have hired local resident Brenda Nelson to help out. A bright, cheery big store was the objective for this friendly couple when they planned their store. Special requests will be attended to and the already varied selection of merchandise altered according to demand as the weeks pass. The store features patent medicines, a photo service, wide gift selection including toys, cards and gift wrap; cosmetics and local crafts. On hand are the usual grocery items with all dairy products available. Next summer scooped ice-cream will be offered. Fresh coffee is something many morning people are stopping for on their way to work, reports Fran. Hours will be posted at the official opening on Saturday and Mr. Blow added that parking will soon be available in the rear of the plaza for shoppers.
