Town Hall Tales

The Night the Town Hall almost burned down by George Elliott

As people came within sight of the Town Hall the lights were visible shining through a haze of smoke while in the corner by the fire exit bright yellow flames flickered in the windows. When I arrived firefighters were already on the job and entering the Town Hall heard the sound of water pouring down into the room behind the Council Chamber.

The stairways and upstairs hall were filled with smoke and a number of citizens were standing around upstairs watching the proceedings. By this time the stove had plunged through the floor into Jimmy's room below and firemen were pouring water on the wood around the place the stove had been on the floor and walls, and down the hole in the floor onto the stove below. Most of the excitement was over by then and the story of the night's events was being passed along from person to person among the spectators.

very hot indeed. Jimmy had been awakened by the smell of smoke and the sound of the fire. He rushed out and pulled the fire siren switch but nothing happened. The siren was frozen. He had a few tugs on the bell rope, grabbed a pail, filled it with water and raced upstairs to throw it on the fire. On the way down he pulled the rope a couple of times again, filled the pail, tugged the rope, and raced upstairs.

This accounted for the intermittent clanging of the bell. He kept at it, running up and down stairs in his stocking feet in the smoke until the firefighters arrived. Undoubtedly his efforts helped to hold the fire back. The stove eventually came down through the hall floor onto his bed so it was lucky he wakened when he did.

This fire ended his career as caretaker of the Hall. His room was destroyed and there was no other one in the hall so he moved elsewhere eventually becoming night watchman at Baxter Laboratories and later at Dills Printing and Publishing. I have never forgotten several unrelated incidents which stick in my memory from that night. I remember standing in the hallway downstairs for a few minutes where a number of men, leading citizens of the town at that time, had gathered and were talking. I remember distinctly Amos Mason and Arlof Dills. Smoke floated around us, there were bangs and thumps coming from above, and just through the Council Chamber door was the sound of water cascading from the hoses through the hole on the floor. It struck me as odd in all this excitement that they were cooly discussing the weather and some issues of local politics. Upstairs the firemen had put a ladder through the trap door over the stage into the attic and some had gone up for a look around. Although the fire had not burned through the ceiling, the attic must have been full of smoke and this was in the days before respirators so they were a brave lot.

I remember Firefighter Sam Tennant coming down the ladder and reporting to the Fire Chief, who strangely enough I don't remember. He said, "It's pretty hot up there, do you think I should take up a hose?" And I don't remember whether he got to take a hose up the ladder or not.

Jimmy wandered about watching, still in his stocking feet, saying nothing, his face showing no signs of the recent panic he must have felt. I felt sorry for him because now he had no place to sleep, however, a neighbour took him in for the rest of the night. The next morning I overheard one local citizen saying to Police Chief Harrop, "Well anyway we got a certain room cleaned out," so I gathered that maybe Jimmy's stay in the Town Hall as caretaker was not popular with everyone. Oh yes, what happened to the High School "At Home"? Friday morning before school everyone was glum. What to do? At nine o'clock Principal Stewart called a meeting of the whole school to discuss the matter. In those days there were only ninety students or so and they regularly and easily crowded into one room of the school for an important meeting. (The High School then was in the old stone school now St. Joseph's Separate School.) It was decided that if everyone worked there would be time to move the dance to the YMCA building using the upstairs gym and the downstairs hall for dancing with a PA system linking the two together. Jobs were assigned and by early afternoon everything was in readiness for the dance to go on as scheduled and it did with as

AT HOME in the town hall in 1946 including presentation of certificates to members of the graduating class. Included in the group are

Philbrook tells house

Canadians fed up with post office

Canadians are fed up with delays and irresponsible actions taken by Post Office workers, Halton MP Frank Philbrook told the House of Commons last week. Dr. Philbrook was questioning Postmaster General Gilles Lamontagne to see what could be done to prevent incidents such as one that took place at the Ottawa terminal cause they tend to blame the post office management for all of their troubles. However it is workers appears to be unmatched, unprecedented. Government and management tend to be blamed. The jobs are considered to be boring. Many jobs are very boring, Mr. Speaker. But these jobs are also very well paid.

Dr. Frank Philbrook

much success as if nothing had happened. As for the Town Hall, in due course it was repaired. The stove went back, the floor was fixed, and a good many dances were held before it ceased to be used. In fact, the next year the "At Home" was back in its original location. Everything returned to what it had been all except Jimmy. His days at the Town Hall were over unless perhaps late at night his spirit still runs up and down those stairs as he did one frosty night thirty years ago.

not all the postal workers who behave in this way. "We do not have any trouble with the letter carriers, the outside workers. In fact, I believe one reason the letter carriers split off and developed their own union was because they felt they could no longer be associated with the inside workers. "People in my riding—I think they are fairly representative of business; they are business people by and large who rely on the mail—are puzzled about all this, as I think, the rest of us are. They are frustrated because we do not seem to have an answer. After all, we have been at this for several years. They are angry and demanding some kind of action, a resolution of this problem and, of course, they look to the federal government for answers. "Why are we running into all this trouble? Industrial relations is a wide field. There are conflicts all the time between management and labour whether in the public or the private sector. But this type of behaviour by postal
