

Local couple wed Sept. 2

Guests came from as far away as Yugoslavia to attend the wedding of Vicky Kotsopoulos and W. G. Douglas McGilloway on September 2.

The Rev. Len Ewing officiated at the double ring ceremony held in St. Alban's church. Mrs. Oakes provided the organ music.

Vicky is the daughter of Paul and Vange Kotsopoulos, 81 Churchhill Rd. N., and is a waitress at Family Restaurant. Douglas is the son of Leo and Doris McGilloway, 108 Main St. N., and is a waiter at the Station Hotel.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride wore a gown of polyester with a high neck decorated with pearls and appliques. The gown had long sleeves and a long train. She carried a colonial bouquet of orange sweetheart roses, baby's breath, stephanotis and white carnations. The bouquet was trimmed with lace and pearls.

Matron of honor was Madeleine Payne of Acton. She wore a pastel yellow gown, which differed in style from the others.

Bridesmaids were Pat Kelley, a friend of Acton, who wore a peach colored gown; the bride's sister Marg Galanos, of Guelph, who also wore pastel yellow, and Debbie McGilloway, the groom's sister, of Whitby, who wore a peach colored gown. They carried silk bouquets of yellow roses which were outlined in peach with baby's breath arranged in baskets.

An evening reception and dance was held at the Roma Club in Milton.

Guests at the wedding were the groom's great grandmother from Toronto, the bride's grandparents from Toronto, the groom's grandmother from Acton, and the groom's grandparents from Fergus. The bride had two special guests who attended the wedding while visiting Canada from Yugoslavia.

Three bridal showers were held for the bride-elect before her marriage. They were held by: the bride's side; the groom's side; and the matron of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. McGilloway are now living in the Church St. apartments.

VICKY KOTSOPoulos and Douglas McGilloway were married in St. Alban's Anglican church September 2. They are now living on Church St.

Clarence Coles speaks to Daughters of Knox

The regular meeting of the Daughters of Knox was held in the Mary Ellen Anderson Room, Presbyterian Church on Monday evening.

President Faye Pink opened the meeting by the reading of a poem entitled "Men Laugh". Living for Jesus was sung and the club's motto repeated.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the recording secretary Georgina Van Fleet. The treasurer's report was given by Faye Pink.

Carol Korpela announced that the new C.G.I.T. group has been started, and that its leaders are May Haynes and Jane Robertson.

The nominating committee for the new executive was then formed and consists of Faye Pink, Helen Otterbein and Anne Moore. Rene Watson and Joyce Sprowl agreed to be in charge of the distribution and sales of the church calendars. It was decided to discontinue the making of mineral this year. Joyce Sprowl and her group conducted the worship portion of the meeting from a Thanksgiving service from a copy of Glad Tidings.

Prayer was given by Helen Otterbein and scripture portions read by Faye Pink and Vivian Swallow. The offering was given by Joyce Sprowl.

The speaker of the evening, Clarence Coles, was introduced by Mrs. Pink. Mr. Coles explained the Second Century Advance for Christ Movement in the Presbyterian church was formed to promote stronger church attendance and that people are being urged to form Bible study groups. Mr. Coles then proceeded to conduct a Bible study period based on Ephesians 1:3-14. Since Thanksgiving was the theme of this meeting, attention was drawn to the many things in this scripture portion for which everyone should be thankful. They were also asked to think of ways in which they can show their gratitude to God.

Anne Moore thanked Mr. Coles for his most interesting Bible study. Refreshments were then served and an hour of fellowship enjoyed.

Scout, Guide mothers

A happy group of mothers from the Scout and Guide-Mothers Association met at the Scout Hall last Tuesday evening.

The president opened the meeting and welcomed all mothers.

Discuss Hallowe'en Christmas at meeting

by Mrs. Emily Price

We hope everyone had a good summer and were able to get away for a least a few weeks to enjoy the wonderful weather we had. Hopefully there will be more as we usually have nice weather in October.

Here we are back into the fall season. Most fall fairs are over except for a few. All the preserving and canning is all done and what a lovely one that gives our homes.

The countryside is starting to take on the beautiful colors and we hope many will be able to get out to see and enjoy all the beauty. It is also the season when all organizations get back into full swing for their fall and winter schedules.

Our organization held their first meeting of the season at the M.Z. Bennett school on September 27 with a fairly good attendance. Unfortunately, some of our members were unable to attend due to illness, and due to the fall fair news, our column didn't get into the paper announcing our opening meeting.

Our Hallowe'en party and Christmas party were discussed at this meeting. We hope to have a good turnout for our October meeting when we hope to have Peter Pomeroy who is running for mayor of Halton Hills as our guest speaker. We hope as many as can will get out to give him a good welcome. A warm invitation is given to all who would like to come out and join our organization. Let us all get behind our executive and social committee and give them all the support and help we can to make it a good season. As it is also our Hallowe'en Party, please feel free to come in Summer is slipping away quickly, and I almost didn't realize it!

During many days of heavy rain here, it dawned on me that there might be few warm, sunny days left; if I wanted a tan this year, I'd better get working on it.

Therefore, for the past couple of weeks, every afternoon when the sun's out I drop my pen, unplug the typewriter, put away the camera, and head outside.

I'd bought a suncoat just for hawking purposes, but within a week it developed problems. Instead of being an eight-position coat with ends that went up and down, it refused to lower one end and I spent my first sunning hours sitting bolt upright.

I tried to beat some sense into the thing and got it flattened out for a week, but then one day I tried to unfold it and both ends jammed!

If I'd been able to lie in a "U" shape, there'd be no problem, but the best I could manage was a "V", and even that didn't work too well.

Then came the day when I wrestled the coat to the ground, got both ends down by sheer force - and ripped the cloth in the process.

Out it all went in the garbage and I hunted up an old blanket to throw on the ground instead.

Within five minutes I found that this arrangement had its drawbacks - the animals discovered me sprawled on the grass and thought it was solely to bring me down to their level. They were delighted and a routine was quickly established.

Shortly after lunch, I change to shorts and sunhalter, spread a blanket on the lawn, stretch out, close my eyes, and start soaking up the sun.

Arthur is the first to appear. I'll hear "roww-roww" noises coming closer and closer, then a heavy weight will hit my side with a thud. Arthur has arrived.

He's a big grey ex-tomcat who delights in talking to people. As long as I talk back, he'll make various cat noises by way of conversation, all the while turning and twisting under my hand as he tries to find the spot most in need of a scratch.

Yesterday he discovered that, by lying between my feet, he'd get rubbed on both sides, and was in ecstasy, throwing himself from side to side, end to end, covering all angles.

After he's had his share of loving, I'm free to doze for awhile until the sound of crunching brings me back to earth.

Miss Kitty must save her lunch just so she can keep me company, but the thought isn't appreciated.
