

Members entertain at Ballinafad U.C.W.

by Winifred Smith
The December meeting of the U.C.W. was as usual, in the form of a pot luck dinner and party. It was held on Tuesday evening, December 12 in the basement of the Church. Most members were able to be present.
They were accompanied at this special occasion by their husbands. The committee in charge of setting up the tables and decorating them made a fine job as it put on the festive touch which added much to the enjoyment of the meal. A large number sat down and enjoyed the delicious food.
When the tables were cleared the women met for a short business session. All then joined in for the evening's program. Mrs. Eileen Brown head of the program committee, called first on the men's choir for a number. It was followed by a quartet given by Alma Sinclair, Emmerson Clarke, Wella and Fred Shortill.
Mr. Stiles as in former years was the "Guest from Quebec" and I'm sure the gathering would have been disappointed if he had not come along.

There was a skit given by five ladies, Alma Sinclair, Barbara Munro, Joyce Clarke, Eileen McEnery and Margaret Jamieson. It was entitled "The House of Unclaimed Blessing" and caused some merriment.
Grace McEnery was called on to give a reading which brought back memories to some, entitled "Looking Back."
Three members of the U.C.W. had the devotionals. Mrs. Eileen Brown read the scripture, Mrs. Volmar told the Christmas story, and Mrs. Jamieson led in prayer. To end the program Eileen McEnery played the piano and a few of the familiar Christmas carols were sung by all. To end the night's entertainment, Jesse McEnery was called upon to auction off the gift boxes to the men attending. They were brought by the women to the meeting and were all surprise packages.

The auction brought in $81.00. Added to the previous sale held by members, it brought a total amount of $122.00. It is to be given to the Georgetown committee for welfare purposes in the community.
Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Burt were given an early Christmas present when their son Harvey and his wife Doreen presented them with their first grandchildren (twins), a boy and a girl, early in December. Congratulations to all concerned.
The Christmas theme was observed again at the church service on Sunday when the third advent candle was lit. Mrs. Betty Brown added to the service when she sang and played on the guitar.
It was announced there would be a special Christmas service next Sunday (Christmas Eve), beginning at 7 p.m.
Season's Greetings to all the readers and Happy Holidays to everyone.

$20-million glass plant helps Milton picture

The job picture in Milton took on a rosy hue with last week's announcement by Consumers Glass Company Limited of its plans to build a $20-million plant.
The new plant will employ between 175 and 200 people. The glass container manufacturing plant is to go into production in 1980. Construction is slated to start next spring.

Milton was selected as the site for the new plant because Consumers Glass already has a 260,000 square foot warehouse on a 90-acre site at Milton. The factory will be near the warehouse on Chisholm Drive next to Highway 401.

R. D. Morison, President of Consumers Glass, said the company acquired the Milton land six years ago with the intention of locating a second Ontario glass container manufacturing plant on that location.
"We have been operating our Etobicoke glass container plant at virtual capacity for some years now, and the demand for our products is such that we need a second Ontario plant at this time," he said.
Consumers Glass also has container plants at Ville St. Pierre and Candiac, Quebec, Toronto, and Lavington B.C. on the matter.
The company operates plastic fabricating plants in Canada at Toronto, Barrie, Waterloo P.Q. and in the United States at Bristol, Penn. and Chicago.

Communications the key to helping child agencies

Children are sometimes underserved by social, education and other Halton agencies mainly because of poor communications, according to a judge who often deals with such bureaucracies.
Halton agencies are doing a better job than most but there is a way to go, Judge J.A. Fuller said to board of education trustees at the Halton Board's inaugural meeting, Thursday.

services except education, said the judge. He said he did not want to comment further on the matter.
Agency representatives sometimes find themselves in antagonistic positions, observed Judge Fuller. Such antagonisms can be overcome with communication, he contended.

"We still do not have as full co-operation and communication as we could have," said the judge. Judge Fuller attended the meeting to officiate the declarations of the oath of office and the oath of allegiance.
The judge told trustees he works with "a broad spectrum of services to young people," such as the police youth bureau, children's aid society, probation and after care, board of education and other social services.
"All too often the communication between agencies is referred to in lip service and actual co-operation is either non-existent or to the extent young people are not served as well as they could be," said the judge.
Anything the board can do to promote co-operation in communication can do nothing but help young people become responsible citizens, remarked Judge Fuller.
Professional jealousies also play a part in the under servicing of children, according to the judge.
There is a need to know about the context of other agencies' problems said Fuller. Professional jealousies often arise out of a lack of understanding of the other fellow's problem, he said.
The judge termed "unfortunate" the lack of an education component in a provincially run agency. The child services division set up by the province covered all
