Clothing expenses challenge sewers

With the cost of clothes on the increase, more women are taking up sewing their children's clothes, says Acton Yarn Barn owner Linda Nellis. However, Flo Charlebois of Toddlers to Teens clothing store, says there will always be the need for people to buy clothes. Mrs. Nellis said she has been told by salesmen that another increase in fabric prices will once again raise the skyrocketing prices, especially on children's clothes. The increase is said to be as high as 40 per cent on some fabrics, she said. Recently Mrs. Nellis held a sewing demonstration on stretch and sew techniques. Brookville home economics teacher, Kay Hannah did a demonstration and completed a child's T-shirt in less than one hour. Estimated cost of making two T-shirts was $3. Mrs. Nellis said the quality of the T-shirt was better than the store-bought ones which cannot compare in price.

Kay Hannah recently instructed a Stretch and Sew demonstration at the Acton Yarn Barn. Linda Nellis, owner of the store, said the rising prices of children's clothes have many women turning back to their sewing machines for both savings and fun.

Mrs. Nellis said she has seen a noticeable increase in the number of young women sewing clothes. "Many women are finding that sewing is easy, fun and you can save money." Through her own experience, Mrs. Nellis has found she can sometimes make four or five articles for the price of buying one. Toddlers to Teens store owner Flo Charlebois feels the increase on children's wear is more likely reflected in a 15 per cent hike over last year. Mrs. Charlebois agreed that the high prices do have many mothers sewing. "Those girls who are home are sewing, however I think girls who are working are not sewing."

Mrs. Charlebois attributed the clothing increase to imported fabrics and materials which cost more on the international markets due to the falling Canadian dollar.

One of the major price factors is the high cost of Canadian labor. "It costs the same wage per hour for a seamstress to make a child's outfit as it does for an adult," Mrs. Charlebois said.

Mrs. Charlebois said for many working mothers the money they would save if they stayed home and sewed their children's clothes cannot compete with the money they would make if they were out working.

She said she handled mostly Canadian made clothes because of the quality she can't find in foreign made articles.

Mrs. Charlebois said she, too, sewed for five daughters to help economize years ago. "Now many working women just don't have the time," she said.

Mrs. Charlebois felt that the cost of clothing was not out of line with the present day cost of living for the average working person.

French Immersion not just for bright

French immersion classes are not just for the bright students, any average student can take the course and benefit from it, Helen Mitchell, coordinator of languages for Halton Board of Education, told approximately 80 parents interested in the French immersion class now being held at Joseph Gibbons School, Georgetown.

There are 18 applications for a French immersion class which could be held for Grade 7 students at Stewarttown school, in the fall, however, board policy demands between 30 and 35 students to make the class possible. Applications are still being accepted.

In the present Grade One class at Joseph Gibbons school, students are taught half a day in English and half a day in French. The children learn to read in English first, and are introduced to a French reader in February. They have been speaking French prior to this time.

Parents worried about lack of understanding in math, should have no fears, said Peter Spencer, French consultant, since math is taught in English. Only French Language arts, environmental studies, music and phys ed is taught in French in Grade One class. With reading being taught first in English, any learning problems can be spotted quickly, said Spencer.

Tom Gibson, Principal of Joseph Gibbons school, said the program will have a course specially designed for them since they will be advanced beyond the normal course. In addition they will take geography in French.

Not only the children but the parents must be motivated, since they must provide transportation themselves. At present there are car pools taking the children to Joseph Gibbons school with some coming from Acton.

and nine. The Grade nine program will have a course specially designed for them since they will be advanced beyond the normal course. In addition they will take geography in French
