

The 1972 hit song went "put the lime in the coconut". Eva Cooper must have misinterpreted the tune. Paul Nelsen keeps his store staff warm Saturday after the Callthumplan parade. Pat Wood, foreground looks on.

Todd Oliver carried the Canadian flag during the Callthumplan Parade.

Debbie Martelle competed in the watermelon seed spitting contest Saturday.

Lyle Prueter pulls hard during the popular log sawing contest in the mall on Saturday afternoon.

Bert Davidson had a busy day Saturday as he participated in the Callthumplan Parade in Acton in the morning and then Rockwood's Pioneer Day parade in the afternoon.

Back to Acton Days

Photos by Robin Inscoc and Helen Murray

Jennifer Vickery (centre) was awarded top prize in the bike decorating contest while Alan Landriault (left) placed second and Chris Vickery third.

Chris Copot and Mary Van Dam display crafts made by members of the Share Group.

Two-year-old Greg Finley stole the hearts of many at Back to Acton Days Saturday.

Ed Wood, the Pie-eyed Piper, yanks up his drawers Saturday during the Back to Acton Days celebrations.

The covered wagon of Jane Robertson placed first in the buggy decorating contest on the weekend while Ellen Ward (right) placed second. The third place entry was that of Tasha Peterson (centre). Mrs. Ward's second place entry carried twins Katherine and Leanne.

Winners of the Back to Acton Days poster contest received their awards during the opening of the event Friday. Winners were front row l. to r. Katherine Reed, Richard Ward, Tommy Quesnel, back row, Carolyn Bossert, Ian Smith and Cathy Barrett.

BINGO! Lions Vic Bristow and Ray Evelan called off the numbers during the Bingo Saturday.

Station Hotel owner Nick Kekic and daughter Mary handle one of eight pigs that were barbecued for the weekend's festivities.

Kevin Paisley wasn't clowning around when he went for a poopy ride.

A special presentation was made to Mrs. Doris Browne of C.K. Browne's Confectionary who is retiring this month after 23 years of running the business on Main St. Pat Wood, right made the presentation of roses while Pop Main looks on.