

Jim Saxon with program

Jim Saxon is the latest of three Acton teenagers to take part in the Kallimavik, a federal government sponsored program which takes youths across the country working at various jobs.

The nine month program is open to some 1,800 people each year, ages 17 to 23. In July Catherine Beaton and Linda Shadbolt left for their nine month stint. The youths are paid $1 a day and $1,000 at the end of the nine months. Their room and board, and transportation are paid for by the government. Jim left last night (Tuesday) for Riviere Bleu, Quebec where he will spend three months in French classes. He will also be doing everything from working with people to log construction. One of the main programs will be working on the corn fest of the area.

His next station is in Victoria British Columbia, where he will be at Esqimalt Naval base, working on basic training.

Three months later, Jim will be heading closer to home—Midland Ontario, where he will be working on everything from Ste. Marie Among the Hurons and a solar energy project.

Because Jim could not decide what direction he wanted his life to go after he finished grade 12 last June, he decided to apply for the program. With the wide variety of jobs he will be doing in the next months, he is confident that if he doesn't know what he wants to do, he will at least know what he doesn't want to do.

Doris Jones innocent . . .

Richards said gasoline was found in her slipper, which was found outside the house, and on the pant leg of her trousers.

Tests at Georgetown Hospital showed there were no drugs or alcohol in her system at the time of the fire, the officer said.

Richards continued that from glass fragments found 50 to 60 feet from the house, it was evident there had been an explosion in the house. The house, barn and shed were completely destroyed he said.

Richards testified two bodies had been found on pieces of mattresses and bed springs. Mr. Treleven pointed out there was carbide monoxide in the victims' bloodstream, indicating they were alive at the time of the fire.

Treleven stated that Mrs. Jones recalls little of the fire.

Counsel for the defense, Brian Greenspan told the court that Mrs. Jones was employed as a nurse and her employer had noticed a physical deterioration and depression prior to the fire.

Dr. Paul Gattfield, a psychiatrist with the St. Thomas hospital, and director of the forensic unit testified Mrs. Jones was admitted April 20, coming from Guelph's Homewood Sanitarium. During her month at St. Thomas, he said, she underwent a standard series of tests and was constantly observed by staff.

Upon admittance to the hospital, Dr. Gattfield said, Mrs. Jones was mal nourished weighing only 95 pounds. She is now back up to her normal weight of 137 pounds, he said. She was also tense and disorganized and was subject to sudden shifts in personality. He explained one minute she was speaking of suicide, the next she wanted to call relatives.

Dr. Gattfield said that based on reports of incidents prior to admission, she was mentally ill and was so at the time of the fire.

Mr. Treleven wanted to know whether Mrs. Jones was incapable of appreciating the moral wrong she was doing. The doctor told the court Mrs. Jones felt her actions were justified. She felt tortured by life, and expressed several times she was not responsible for what happened.

Dr. Robert Hill, director of forensic services at Clark explained that Mrs. Jones grew up in western Canada and married at an early age. Early in the marriage she started suffering mental and physical abuse. With the husband and wife working hard building their lives, they had no relationship at home. The house was filled with disharmony he testified. Mrs. Jones, he said, had been consulting doctors for her depression and was on medication. Mrs. Jones felt psychologically trapped, he said.

Dr. Hill testified Mrs. Jones' depression came to a head in April. With an increasingly rigid and burdened belief she couldn't escape, he said, she came to believe she had to die and that the two victims must die with her. Dr. Hill said Mrs. Jones did not appreciate the implications of what was happening.

Mrs. Jones is still very ill, Dr. Hill said, and it is going to take some time for her to get well. She has a scattered recollection of what happened, but she feels as if she was watching from a distance. Some things Mrs. Jones remembered shortly after the fire, he said, she cannot remember now.

Mr. Treleven asked the doctor if an insane person is capable of getting gas beforehand and planning something. Dr. Hill explained that Mrs. Jones was not totally disoriented, but is the type who has lost touch with reality. She is an individual who is dictated by an insane attitude, he claimed.

Mrs. Jones' lawyer, Mr. Greenspan, in his closing remarks to the jury, pointed out if she was found innocent by reason of insanity, she would be detained in a tight security hospital until the province feels she is ready to come out. Treleven endorsed this disposition of Mrs. Jones.

Mr. Justice Pennell pointed out to the jury there was no contest of evidence in the case. "Mrs. Jones drew an unlucky lottery ticket in the lottery of life," he said.

Acton High notes

By Janet Rowe

Acton High welcomed many new students into the school last week.

Many came from places all across Canada. But one student came all the way to Acton High from West Germany. Peter Wetklo a grade 12 student arrived in Canada only two weeks ago. Sponsored by the Rotary Club of Acton, for this youth exchange program, Peter is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Ken Grubbe on Queen St., Acton. Peter will stay at four local homes during the year, three months at each.

After completing only a week of school, he finds the teachers and student very friendly and helpful. Interested in learning more about people and the community, Peter plans to join clubs and teams in and out of school.

The Athletic Society is now in full swing. Meetings every night last week prepared the society for the Athletic assembly held yesterday.

The key point of the assembly was to acquaint students with the various teams and after school activities that are available and open to all within the school.

Third person in local B&E's

Halton Regional police have arrested a third person believed to be connected with a rash of break, enter and thefts in Acton.

Last week the police arrested a 17-year-old youth formerly of Acton, in connection with three of the break and enters, all private residences.

A warrant for the youths arrest was issued after two other suspects were arrested and charged with a total of 15 counts of break, enter and theft in town.

Boehmer gets fuel contract

A local fuel supplier has been awarded the contract to supply Halton Hills with fuel oil for the coming winter.

The town of Oakville, according to Hugh Peterson, in a report to clerk administrator, called tenders for Burlington, Milton, the region, Oakville public utilities commission, the Halton Conservation, and the town of Halton Hills.

Boehmers Limited, a local supplier gave the lowest bid for Halton Hills, excluding the other areas.

General Committee passed the resolution to accept the Boehmer's contract.

Savings bonds offer bonuses

People start off buying Canada Savings Bonds for a special purpose but very often wind up keeping them to maturity.

That's been the experience of thousands of Canadians who buy Canada Savings Bonds every year on the payroll savings plan and who "suddenly" found that they had more than doubled their money last year when two fairly large CSB issues came due.

There will be another "bonus" for CSB holders in 1979.

Nearly a million CSB holders will be eligible for special interim cash bonuses payable on Nov. 1 of this year on six CSB issues dated prior to Nov. 1974. These bonuses range from $32.50 to $16.75 for every $100 CSB held.

These bondholders, many of whom probably bought their bonds on the payroll savings plan, don't need to be sold on the merits of a systematic savings program, whereby they can purchase Canada Savings Bonds where they work. The money is deducted from their pay cheques and barely missed by the time the bonds are paid for and delivered to them.

To help make this possible every year, a team of 38 organizers visits some 2,800 business and industrial establishments every year, setting up payroll savings plans in co-operation with companies and institutions across Ontario.

The payroll organization for this year's campaign, which runs from mid-September to mid-November, will be directed by two prominent Toronto investment dealers, John Campbell and Donald N. Fraser. Mr. Fraser has been in the securities field since 1957 and has been associated with Canada Savings Bond Campaigns for the past 18 years, seven of them as an Ontario director.

Mr. Campbell has also had a long distinguished career in the investment industry. This is his second Canada Savings Bond Campaign.

Mr. Fraser will be Director for Ontario East, which includes Toronto, Northern and Eastern Ontario, while Mr. Campbell will serve as Director for Ontario

West, which includes Southwestern Ontario from Mississauga.

Regarding the special interim cash bonuses, both directors remind CSB holders that there is no mention of these bonuses on their bonds and advise them to check and see if they hold any CSBs from Series 22, Series 23, Series 25, Series 26, Series 27 and Series 28.

If you do, they advise, take them to your bank, trust company or credit union for payment. They'll do the rest. You can arrange for payment as early as Oct. 9.

This year marks the 34th anniversary of Canada Savings Bonds, which have become recognized through the years as one of Canada's most popular personal investments. There have been more than 50 million applications since 1946, with total sales during that period amounting to over $60 billion. Of that amount, more than $9.4 billion has been purchased through the payroll savings plan instituted in thousands of business establishments for their employees.

Last year a record $781.7 million worth of Canada Savings Bonds was purchased through the payroll savings plan by close to 850,000 individual purchasers.

More than $264 million worth of Canada Savings Bonds was purchased by close to 280,000 employees through payroll savings plans in Ontario last year.

Canada Savings Bonds are available to all Canadians, either through the payroll savings plan where they work or by individual purchase for cash or by instalments, at their local banks and authorized investment dealers, stockbrokers, trust and loan companies and credit unions.

Canada Savings Bonds play a dual role in the development of Canada. They help individual Canadians save, on a regular basis, to achieve family economic goals and at the same time are a major factor in the federal government's debt management program, thus providing a means whereby every Canadian can become directly involved in financing his country's growth and future development.

Integrated studies

Dear Editor:

Integrated Studies, a Programme at the University of Waterloo for students who wish to explore their individual interests using the resources of the University and the community (with or without formal courses), is celebrating its 10th Anniversary on November 2nd and 3rd, 1979.

We would appreciate your assistance in contacting people who have been associated with the Programme over the past decade; they are the reason for our celebration.
