Charlie Blake puts a piece of Esclad Vinyl Siding through a rigorous test at Building Products of Canada Limited.

day, five days a week. About half of the employees are part of the United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum, and Plastic Workers of America, local 603. Tom Ostrander, of Acton, is plant manager.

The firm not only boasts of growing business, it is also proud of its accident free record.

Last July, the company marked five years of work without a disabling injury. Next month, Mr. Wadland said, they mark one million man hours.

These records do not come by chance, however, Mr. Wadland said. There is a budget for safety programs, and the entire staff is safety conscious. Since the firm started a safety program, there has also been a tremendous decline in accidents off the job, too.

Mr. Wadland credits good relationships between union and management for the success of the program.

Esclad Vinyl Siding is not sold directly to the customer from the Acton plant. The product is sold through wholesalers, directly to applicators, (contractors) or to lumber yards.

Mr. Wadland foresees Building Products' future in Acton as bright, with the expansion in Calgary helping the local firm. The manager also feels Acton has been good for the company, and they are not about to change that.

Randy McIntyre checks the controls in the plant at Esclad Vinyl Siding.

Bill Wadland is the general manager of Esclad Vinyl Siding, part of Building Products of Canada Limited.
