

There were enough pumpkins after Halowe'en for Acton High School students to hold a carving contest. Targets were, of course, the teachers. Oh, yes, and the principal Wally Watkins. Mr. Watkins, above, with his effigy, sits after the judging of the pumpkin which most resembled the home room teacher. The "best dressed" category went to the students who look science teacher Jane Zaroway as their model. The finished product was equipped with scientific equipment and a white lab coat. Note the pumpkin's detail—the earrings and the eyes.

Acton High Notes

by Janet Rowe
King Tut has struck. The numerous reproductions, T-shirts, records and the new dance, The Tut Strut, is all part of the commercial side of the art show. However, Acton High art students are lucky to by-pass the limitations and head right to the "real thing."

On November 15, the art students will be heading for the Art Gallery of Ontario to witness the much acclaimed Egyptian art of more than 3,000 years ago.

Last Friday Spirit week came to an end at Acton High. A large percentage of the students and staff took part to make Spirit week an exciting and fun-filled week. Thanks goes to all students association members who made the past week possible, also thanks to all who took part in some event throughout the past week.

Monday night marked the beginning of badminton, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Badminton is organized by Mrs. Zowney and she encourages all interested students to come out and have a good time.

With Remembrance Day on a Sunday this year, the Acton High Remembrance day ceremony will be held on the Friday before.

Speyside school by Lisa Sansom and Tina Oprea Mrs. Pearce's and Mrs. Preston's classes were at Mountsberg. There they saw rabbits, horses, skunks, a bull, ducks, roosters and pigs. They went on a tractor ride. They went on a long walk and saw a puppet show about a frog, a snake and a bunny. They learned about fall, animals, hibernation, camouflage, migration, and how seeds spread.

Mrs. Shier's class went on a hike last week. They had a Halowe'en party and the children's parents are coming next week.

See you next week. Robert Little News by Lesley Sawden and Ann Gardener Robert Little classes got their pictures back on Mon. Nov. 6, 1979. Robert Little will get their report cards in two weeks.

St. Joseph's News

by Rhonda Barrett And Honor Sweetey
St. Joseph's school volleyball teams are well in progress.

The captain of the boys' team is John McGrath and the captain of the girls' team hasn't been chosen yet.

We are putting up shelves in the storage room. The staff and Father Speagle went on a twilight retreat last Monday.

Mrs. Munkacs's kindergarten class is putting up a supermarket display in their classroom. They will be starting to take gym in the scout hall.

Mrs. Robertson's ones and twos will be going to the Cenotaph on Friday to celebrate Remembrance Day. They will be having a celebration with Father Speagle today.

Mrs. Graham's two's and three's will be finishing their unit on the history of Acton. They will be studying Acton's coat of arms next.

Miss Bradley's three and four class are going to have an auction or penny sale for Mission Hope. Their student of the week is Monique Agnus.

Mr. McGeragle's class of fives and six's are working with charcoal for art. They have a display of King Tutankhamen in their class.

If good weather is provided Miss Lebel's class will have a car wash. They have decorated their classroom with silhouette posters.

In gym Mr. Marris's class are studying the basics of volleyball.

Mae Fountain, left, and Mrs. Jack Hargrave helped man the tables during the ACW Bazaar and tea Saturday at Luxton Memorial Hall, beside St. Alban's Church. Many shoppers came for the sale and later refreshed themselves with tea and sandwiches.

Library activities for young

Lots of fun activities are planned for the Halton Hills libraries this fall. The fall reading club, which started on October 2 runs through to December 8. Youngsters are required to read and report on ten books from the non-fiction collection. Bookmarks, buttons and a grand slam party are in store for participating children.

On November 10, Rosini the Magician will be performing his tricks at the Acton Library. The same day, the Bible Club begins and continues November 17 and 24. Anyone completing this training will be able to help out in the library in their spare time. Boys and girls over 10 years old are welcome.

Hallowe'en night sees all sorts of ghouls and witches at the Georgetown Library when Hallowe'en fun and games will be found there. December 8, the Acton Library says goodbye to the 70s and needs all the help they can get. Youngsters are invited to be on hand to design bookmarks for 1980, take part in a poster contest, design a Christmas card, as well as take in movies, games and a puppet show.

Ladies' Aid

Thoughts of Christmas surfaced at the meeting of Knox Ladies' Aid last Tuesday when the president, Mrs. H. Murray, invited the members to her home to a pot-luck Christmas Luncheon on November 27 at 1 p.m. The usual gift exchange will be observed.

The meeting was opened with a reading entitled "The Gift of Giving" by Mrs. Murray.

Presiding as secretary was Mrs. C. Armstrong who is substituting for Mrs. D.S. Morrison during her stay in a convalescent home in Toronto. All are glad to hear she is improving slowly there.

A review of the two dinners served during the month was made, and plans were made for another one to be served on November 20.

The devotional part of the meeting was taken by Mrs. W.J. McLeod reading the Scriptures and Mrs. W. Kennedy leading in prayer.

ROYAL FEVER, IT'S CONTAGIOUS

Every year about this time, a highly-contagious virus sweeps the land. It's Royal Fever. The irresistible urge to get back to nature.

There is only one cure. A visit to the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair. Talk to the people who produce your food. Enough to feed 23 million Canadians plus the export market. Tour 27 acres of exhibits. The best in pure-bred dairy, beef and market livestock, breeding and show horses, sheep, swine, poultry, goats, dairy products, field crops, flower and commercial exhibits.

Everything under the agricultural sun. On Youth Day, Thursday, November 8, more than 1,000 farm youngsters will compete for their own, special prizes. On Senior Citizen's Day, Friday, November 9, seniors will be admitted for $1 with a free matinee performance of the Royal Horse Show.

Magnificent floral displays decorate the area of the Flower Show. Learn how to arrange flowers. See children's fashions by Elen Henderson three times daily and listen to talented organist Dorothy Bromby-Smythe.

And don't miss the International Poster Competition where some of the world's best graphic artists display their talent.

At Ontario Foodland, there's wine tasting, stage shows, live entertainment and displays of the best of the Province's products and produce.

Then there is the highlight of them all. The 51st Royal Horse Show. Thrill to the pageantry and showmanship. Watch Canada's best equestrians, defending the International team championship won last year, as they compete against international riders from Switzerland, Britain, the United States and Australia. High-stepping Hackneys, spirited Hunters, animated Arabians, four and six-horse teams of Belgians, Clydesdales and Percherons.

This is Royal Fever at its peak. No other show in Canada — or in the world — can match the diversity of the Royal.

Come catch Royal Fever. It's an experience you'll never forget.
