Go wild at library

The Acton junior library wants you to go wild this summer.

The library is once again offering their popular summer reading club with "wild reading" as this year's theme.

Junior librarian Margaret Merrin said to join a child must pick up a passport, which is left at the library, and read 16 books of their choice over the summer.

After the first three books and a written or verbal report, a member receives a bookmark—after six books they can collect a fun paper of connect the dots, after nine books they receive a button and after 12 books members earn a game.

After members have read 16 books they receive a colorful poster, and explorer's permit and they will be allowed to attend a wild reading Safari party at the library.

Last year, Merrin said, about 60 children joined the club with 30 completing it. They also had to read a book within the theme, which was fairy tales.

The club starts July 2 and ends on August 28 with the party. Prizes to be awarded include for those who have read the most books and the youngest participant.
