For the first time in its three year history the Canada Day Parade in Ballinafad had horses in it. Soccer teams preceded them.

Ballinafad

by Winifred Smith
The Community Centre Board with their committees had prepared a well planned schedule and arrangements for their third Canada Celebrations. The day was planned for Saturday June 28. The weatherman had a different idea. Just about the time for the parade to form at the hall, it rained a shower first, then a downpour. It looked by this time as if it would be a whole day's rain. It was decided then to cancel it till the following day which of course was Sunday. The parade got underway from the Community Centre at 10 a.m. instead of the later time of 12 which was to be on the Saturday. The weather at this time looked still unsettled and due to the fact that many people had made other plans for the Sunday, the parade was not a long one.

There were some members of the Georgetown Girls Pipe Band who headed the parade followed by a decorated open car which carried members of the Erin Township Council and Halton Hills. An added attraction in the parade this year were some of the Ballinafad horse lovers, who had their ponies in shape so they could go along and be part of the celebration. The activities for the day were to be at Burnett's property, a short distance from the hall. The decorated platform was set up in the centre of a field. The president of the hall board, Dan O'Connor welcomed all and called on Paul Schwartz to lead the singing of O Canada. Mrs. Jo Schneider, member of Erin township council spoke a few words, also Russ Miller and donated five dozen butter tarts, which indeed was a labor of love for country and community. Besides the noon time lunch booth, the baseball girls had barbecued hot dogs available for later in the afternoon and the hall board members had a pop stand. Two of the 4-H Homemaking girls sold lemonade and cookies. Those interested in arts and crafts enjoyed looking at the various pieces that were on display and for sale. All in all there was something for everybody. The committees for all the different jobs are to be congratulated. For all those responsible the work involved was appreciated. A special thank you to Mr. and Mrs. Burnett who made it all possible by sharing their ideal surroundings.

Rev. Don Stiles co-operated with the Hall Board on Sunday by having the church service at an earlier hour, 8.30 a.m., instead of the usual time of 11:45. The weatherman was kind too, as most of the day was ideal for the many activities planned. A terrible storm hit the area between 5 and 6 p.m. Mrs. Agnes McEnergy is progressing well after surgery at the Georgetown Hospital. We hope we will continue to hear good news of her complete recovery. Soccer Games The squirt team had two games during the past week and managed to get two points from these matches. On Tuesday the Blazers were beaten 3-1 by the Black Hawks. Ken Toyne scored the only goal and the 3 stars in this game were David Boyle, Michael Collins, and Sydney Spear who is playing extremely well in goal for a first time player. The result in Tuesday's game was a 2-0 shutout of the Thunderbolts. Jeff Larsen and Graeme Buckrell scored the goals, with good performances by Keven Schneider, Michael Bielby and Craig Burnett. We wish a speedy recovery to Harry Socha, the Blazers' coach, who has been confined to bed for the last few days. Atom Soccer The Bullets in the last two weeks have had a convincing 3-0 win over the Meters with Kyle Anderson scoring two goals. A 1-1 rained out game which they subsequently lost 5-0 in the replay, and another game was rained out last Friday with the score 1-0 against them. The boys have been much improved over the last two games and are now playing good soccer as a team. Their play has been exceptional, considering that there are so many first year boys. If they continue to improve the Bullets may surprise a few teams in the play-off competition. We wish a speedy recovery to Doug Wedgewood and Glen Schwartz who are on the sick list for the Bullets. There is to be a soccer club dance scheduled for early in August.

Need drug education programs

In the wake of a study at an Oakville High School showing a disturbing number of students use alcohol and marijuana, Halton Board of Education has been asked to implement drug education programs. Results of the Addiction Research Foundation (ARF) study were released last month and Thursday Peter Marks, an Acton resident, and Mprlene Swarbrick, both of the ARF, discussed the drug and alcohol problem with trustees. Drug and alcohol use by middle and high school students is a growing Halton and Ontario problem, Marks said, and educators have a vital role to play in helping stem the tide. Marks said the responsibility for the drug and alcohol problem lies with many sectors but urged the board allocate resources and curriculum time for preventative education programs. A number of trustees expressed concern about the board stepping in and cutting out other agencies, who have more resources, from the drug education job. They said drug education is the job of the entire community, especially public health. Ms. Swarbrick said the school system has a great deal of resources already for drug education, but priorities must be set and materials organized. Director of Education Em Lavender said the study shows drug and alcohol education must start young, in grades four, five and six, because by middle school students are being exposed to the problem and making important decisions. He said a writing team will be working on a program this summer. In answer to a question from Acton Esqueing Trustee Betty Fisher, Ms. Swarbrick said the study didn't delve into drug use by students who are active, involved in sports and busy with many interests. She said other studies have shown students who are motivated and strong scholastically don't use drugs and alcohol as much. However, she added, all students are introduced to drugs and alcohol and need education about them, even if they don't use them. Ms. Swarbrick said the study was carried out in the best possible conditions and any exaggeration by students would have been in the number of times they have used a drug. She felt not too many "cooked" the questionnaire. Burlington Trustee Elaine Rhiem worried that if the schools

Estate home development affect livestock farming

The building of 20 homes at Highway 7 and the Fifth Line would have an adverse affect on livestock farming operations in the area, farmer Clarence Coles told Halton Hills planning board, last Tuesday at a public meeting on the proposal. The plan submitted by Esqueing Almond Development calls for 20 estate residential lots of two acres or more each on the 100 acre parcel of land. Twenty-five acres of it is suggested as open space. Coles took issue with a soil report submitted by the applicant which termed the soil marginal for farming, and maintaining less than half of the 100 acres was useable farm land. He said crops raised on the land through the years spoke for themselves. "I think the land compares favorably with land around, and my land is certainly not marginal," he commented. The drain on the water table by the addition of 20 homes concerned Coles. He said existing wells could be depleted and result in a situation similar to Huttonville a few years ago. Coles pointed out urban dwellers upon moving to the country acquire a dog and think it can run free in the country. He contended they have no idea of the harm dogs can cause cattle or sheep. A letter from adjacent farm owner Dennis Denny objected to the housing development and requested a similar rezoning of his land, if this area was changed to residential. Councillor George Maltby contended the homes would sterilize farming on lands other than the Almond

Gymnastics hurts concern trustees

Several members of Halton Board of Education feel there should be more safety equipment for gymnastics after reviewing a report Thursday dealing with sports injuries. Trustees were pleased to see there weren't that many injuries last year considering the number of pupils involved. The report showed there were a total of 182 injuries suffered by high school pupils involved in nearly two dozen sports, in classrooms, during extra curricular activities and on field trips. Of the 182 injuries, only 13 were classified as major. Another 708 elementary pupils suffered minor hurts. In a breakdown of major injuries there were three broken legs in soccer, one shoulder separation in football, two fractures in rugby, one leg fracture in track and field, a broken collar bone and a broken vertebrae in ice hockey, one spinal injury in gymnastics, a broken ankle and a shoulder separation in basketball and a broken rib in a non-sports activity in Halton high schools last year. The report showed thousands of high school students participate in these sports every year without suffering a major hurt. When the minor injuries were included 21 high school students were injured in basketball, 14 in gymnastics, nine in soccer, six each in wrestling and volleyball, five each in track and baseball, four in football, ball and floor hockey and badminton, three in touch football, two in rugby and one each of archery, softball, lacrosse, tennis, karate, murderball, broomball and swimming. Among elementary pupils the most injuries, 29, were in ball or floor hockey, followed by soccer with 22 hurts. Nineteen children were hurt in track and field and in baseball, 13 in volleyball, 12 in football, 10 each in skating and basketball, five in skiing, four in swimming, three in wrestling, roller skating two and ice hockey, badminton and handball one apiece. Another 258 pupils in both elementary and high schools were hurt in general accidents—bumping, pushing, slipping, falling and tripping. There were 75 children hurt last year in playgrounds. In addition 83 students were hurt in technical course classrooms, science labs, family studies rooms, art classes and in cafeterias. Director of Education Em Lavender said there are minimal risks in many school activities, but the answer isn't to stop them.
