

Superior Shoe Repair recently opened for business with some familiar faces behind the counter. Gordon Cavic will repair footwear while Elissa does some stitching. Their children are eight-year-old Goran and six-year-old Milka.

Cavics re-open shoe repair shop in all new building

After more than two years out of business the family Cavic is re-opening a downtown shoe repair service.

Gordon and Elissa Cavic are opening Superior Shoe Repair in a new building behind the Acton Bakery and Delicatessen on Mill St. E.

The couple are very happy to be back in business. Fire gutted Elissa Shoes two years ago last February.

Cavic said he was able to salvage some of the shoe repair equipment from the shop for use in the new building.

The Cavics are proud of the new concrete and steel single storey building. The shop has an area of 330 square feet while the basement is 900 square feet.

Elissa Shoes offered customers new shoes for sale and a repair service. The new business deals exclusively in shoe repair.

Cavic believes there is a market for a shoe repair business in the area. He also believes the trade is dying out because few people are willing to become apprentices.

People wish to work in factories to make more money sooner than if they worked through an apprenticeship; said Cavic.

For example, the Cavics report seeing a Hamilton woman, who is apprenticing, being told she would have to remain an apprentice for five years. The report was carried recently on television.

Eight years ago Cavic opened his first shoe repair shop on Mill St. where Profile Beauty Salon is today. The business moved to Elissa Shoes in 1973 or so. Later on the Cavics combined the shoe repair business with the retail business. Elissa Cavic, who helps her husband by doing stitching, said the family wishes to thank everyone who helped them after the fire. "People in Acton are very nice, they came through with all kinds of help," Gordon Cavic said. The Cavics have two children: Goran, 8, and Milka who is 6.

Changes aimed at improving Region

Regional councillors have given their final approval to a package of amendments they hope will make the region function better.

The amendments, prepared by regional and local staff, outline changes in various sections of the provincial law that formed Halton Region.

Particular concerns of the councillors include business development, water and sewer services and the road system.

proposed changes in the water and sewer systems will be examined in greater detail by regional and local staff members before a final recommendation is made to the province.
