

Boogying down to the fair

The famous Carlsberg team is a regular entrant in the parade and exhibit at the fair.

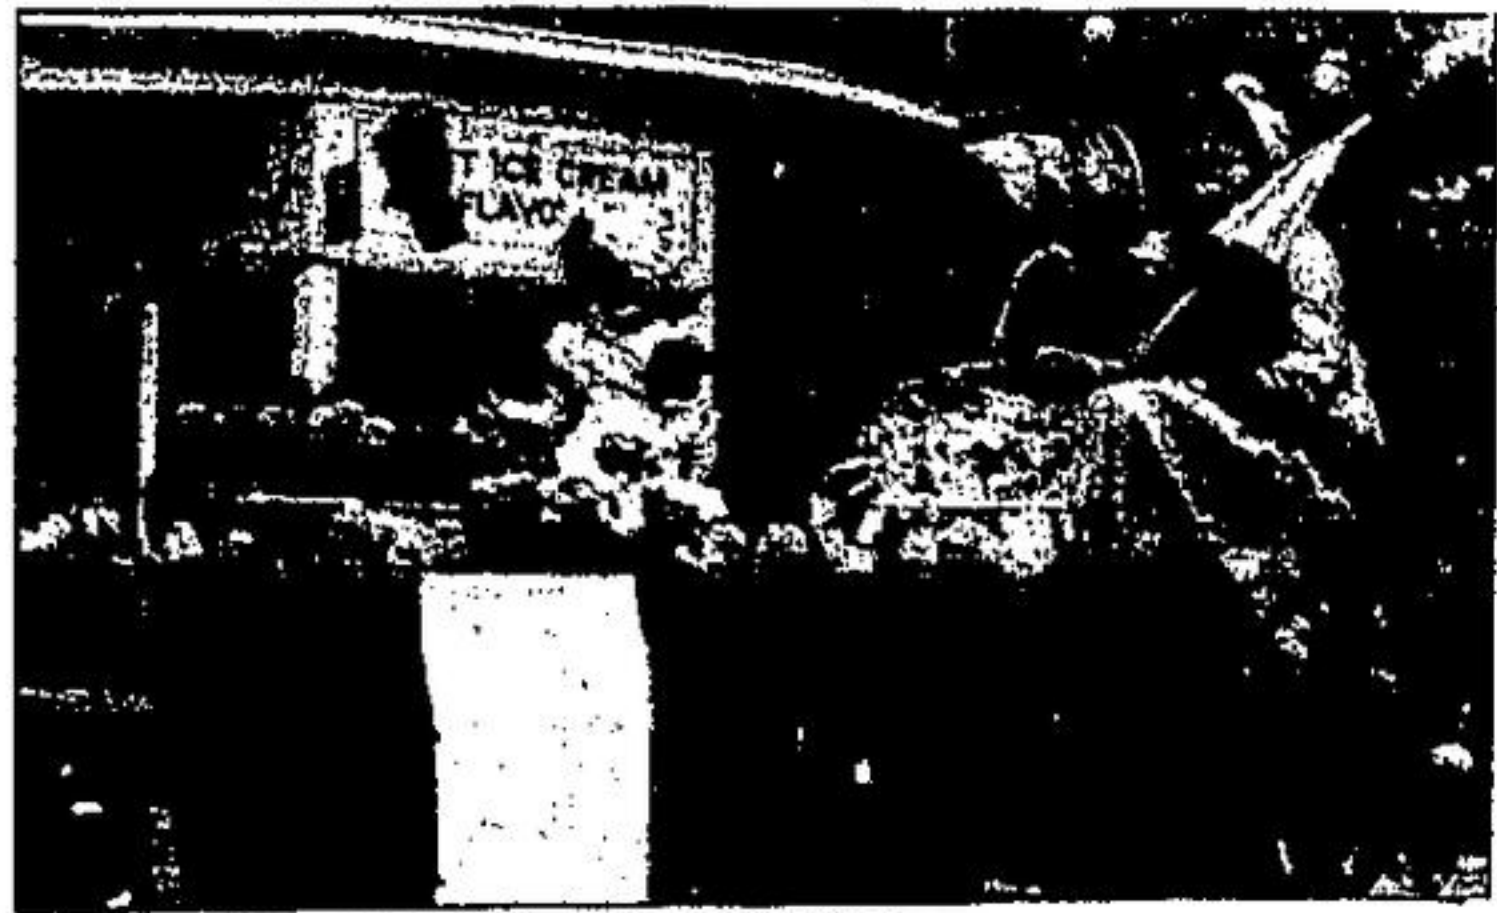

Beta Sigma Phi had representatives in the parade.

Georgetown Girl's Pipe Band was on hand to march in the parade.

The Golden Agers delighted everyone with their float.

Fair board ladies' division float placed first in the judging.

Acton's children of the year Arlie White rode in the parade in an old jalopy.

Inflation major concern Jelinek survey shows

Inflation is the number one concern of people living in the federal riding of Halton, which includes Acton, north Esqueping and north Nassagaweya, a survey by MP Otto Jelinek shows.

During the summer Jelinek surveyed constituents and released the results of his poll this week.

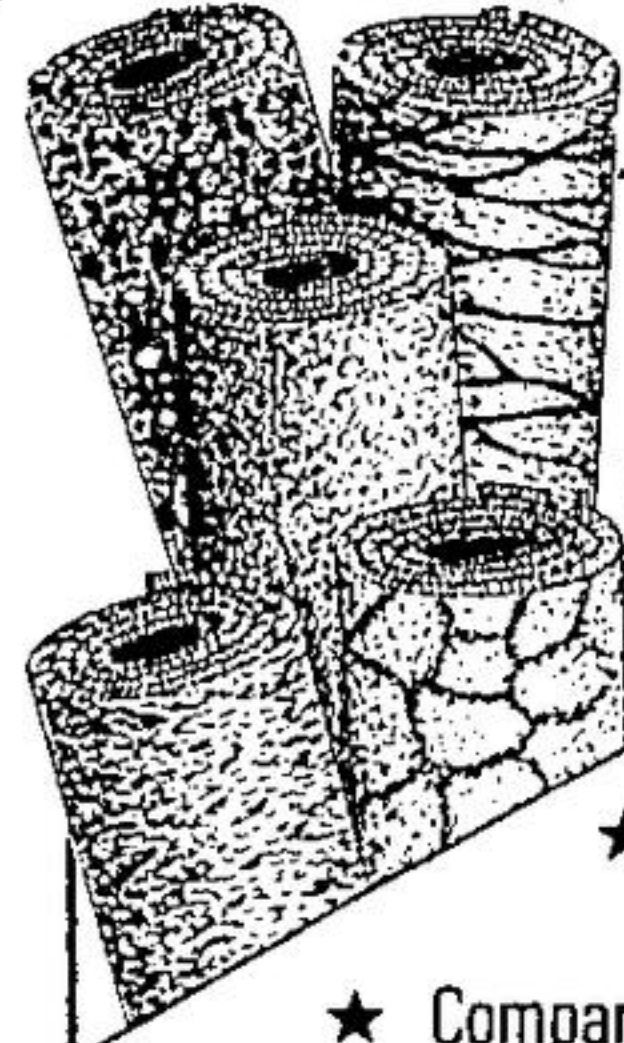

Over 80 per cent of respondents supported bringing the constitution home but only 32.7 per cent favored Ottawa amending the constitution unilaterally, without provincial consent. A surprising 75.4 per cent of those who answered the questionnaire said Ottawa and the provinces should jointly amend the constitution.

Halton riding is divided on how power should be redistributed by the federal and provincial governments but the majority, 57.3 per cent, aren't happy with the present distribution of power between Ottawa and the provinces. A slim majority, 51.2 per cent, supported increased federal powers and 44.4 per cent wanted beefed up provincial powers.

A small majority of people answering the survey were in favor of the present Liberal government re-intro-ucing the Tory mortgage and property tax credit program. The poll showed 55.9 per cent like the former Progressive (Continued on page 9)

Acton High open house

An all parents night and open house is on next Tuesday at the high school.

Parents of first year students are invited to a special half-hour introduction to the school starting at 7 p.m.

Parents of older students are welcome after 7:30 p.m. when they all will be urged to follow their student's time table through the school.

The school's teachers are prepared to detail their expectations of students to the parents. There will also be displays and exhibits—especially in the library and gym—for parents. The evening also offers parents an opportunity to meet principal Betty Moore and the seven new teachers.
