

ELECTION NIGHT FEVER

Hilton-Burlington NDP candidate Chris Cutler watches provincial party leader Michael Cassidy on TV at the riding headquarters at Milton. "Looks as if I'm a victim of an overall provincial pattern," observed Cutler. In his first campaign as a candidate, he trailed Liberal Jullan Reed and Tory Fran Baines in the polls. "It just means I'll be back again," said the 20-year-old Cutler.

"See it's 79 seats," says John McDermid, M.P. as the Tories enjoy the T.V. at local PC headquarters.

Dave Barrager at PC headquarters takes the results as the phones rang incessantly.

Edith Hillsman looks doubtful about the outcome as she talks to John Minns at Liberal Headquarters.

Guess who they're voting for? Julian and Deanna Reed put their X on the ballot in Norval school.

PC candidate Fran Baines cast her ballot at 8.05 in the morning at Stewarttown school.

Former Mayor Tom Hill is not throwing his hat in the political ring. He was making a point as the results came in.

Her family, son Brian, husband Terry and son Devin give mum Fran Baines a well-deserved pat on the back.

Tory Fran Baines concedes defeat to Liberal winner Julian Reed. Mrs. Baines and her husband Terry and campaign manager Ric Morrow came to Reed's Milton headquarters just before 9.30 p.m.

Loyal Liberals surround the hero of the hour Jullan Reed, his wife Deanna and daughter Melaine.
