A large percentage of teenage girls spend more time enamoured of equestrian sports. Few actually make a career out of horses.

Donann Morgan, a 19-year-old Rockwood resident, has been saving her money for years to enter the famour Horsemasters course in England. She's succeeded and will be leaving this summer for Windmill Hill Stables in Stratford upon Avon. Qualifications for the course are sticky, it's expensive, entrants far exceed places available and a great deal of discipline and hard work is needed. But by the time she takes her exams, she hopes to have her BHSAI (British Horse Society Assistant Instructor) diploma. If all goes well she will go on for her intermediate level certificate, followed by a full instructor's diploma. When she's learned all she can in England, Donann plans to return to Canada and study for her Canadian horse show judge papers. The field is then wide open for her to teach English riding at various levels, manage a stable and judge recognized shows.

Donann has been interested in horses most of her life but says she's been riding seriously for the past eight years. She received her first instruction at Mountain View Farms south of Acton continuing lessons when the family moved to Montreal in the early 70s. Since returning to Rockwood five years ago, Donann has taken her own horse Pacha through all pony club test levels to an enviable "B".

Canadian Pony Clubs were organized a decade ago under the auspices of the well-respected British Pony Club Association. Youngsters learn not only riding, jumping, showing and cross country work but they study horse and stable management, nutrition, care and handling. Working through various D and C levels good students progress to a B level by the time they are 18-years-old. Donann hopes to earn her A level-a covetted and rare award-on her return from England.

The fact that she is a "Pony Club B" helped Donann qualify for the Horsemasters program. She also had to be 17 years or over and a graduate of grade 12. Donann finished school at CVCI in Guelph and has been working as a secretary at ITT in Guelph saving every cent for her course.

She needs a minimum of $5,000 for the initial 14 week assistant instructor course (including air fare). If she wishes to continue her studies she'll worry about additional money then, she says. She can become a working student unless she meets her prince, she chuckles adding, "there's always Prince Andrew."

Donann's parents, Dave and Camille Morgan, think their daughter's plans are "fantastic". Dave is English bred and Donann had a chance to visit England for the first time last year when she attended a family wedding with her grandmother and enjoyed three weeks of British brow-

The only sad part of the adventure is the need to sell the family horse Pacha. The Morgans will be moving to Calgary in July as Donann leaves for England. Her younger sister Alison also rides Pacha but both girls have grown too tall for their 15.3 h.h. mount and it's been decided to find him another home.

Originally a western games horse, the 13-yearold gelding was retrained four years ago by Donann and her teacher Donna Ledger. Since then he has been a consistent ribbon winner in hunter classes, pony club railies, and cross country trials. A member of the Guelph Pony Club, Donann has been assisted in her studies by father Dave who, till his recent Calgary move, was the club's district commissioner.

While in England Donann will be part of an eight student class learning everything from rudimentary veterinary work to dressage. She'il be mucking out stables, cleaning tack, writing exams and riding, riding, riding. She even has to wear a uniform consisting of navy work cords, navy sweater, riding boots and tie!

It'll make a change from borrowing her mother's clothes as she's been doing for the past year while saving her own money. Donann has even been working weekends caring for the north Rockwood stable of dressage star Lorraine Stubbs-all extra cash and experience.

Donann is determined to reach her goal-a refreshing outlook in today's world-and she's proved herself a hard worker. Watch the equestrian world in a couple of years and you may see the name of Donann Morgan on the national team. Unless she meets her prince, of course.
