 SCOTT'S, the lawn people
 MARYSVILLE, OHIO

As we drive around the country looking at lawns, we get the distinct impression that there are just as many senior citizens out there taking care of the grass as there are those of lesser age. You could say, of course, that the latter are busy elsewhere, playing tennis, jogging, or plain earning a living. Maybe. But there could be other reasons, too, for the grey hair. Cutting the lawn is a lot easier these days. And pushing a spreader is a piece of cake at any age.

Possibly there are reasons less tangible but just as real. As we grow older our attachment to home increases. So does our appreciation of greenery with its friendliness and its solace. And what could be more natural than taking good care of the things we love?

There are some activities restricted to youth, but tending the lawn isn't one of them. From teenager on, it's a matter of family pride and satisfaction in which date of birth doesn't count.
