Waterball, bucket race action big hit at park

Grand Valley and Inglewood fire departments were the big winners at the Acton Firefighters first annual waterball and bucket race competitions Saturday at Prospect Park.

The Acton ladies team was the only local squad to pick up silverware, third in a field of three in the bucket race. It was the Acton team's first try in the bucket race. Both the mens and ladies waterball teams for Acton were ousted from competition in the first round. In ladies waterball Inglewood was first, Grand Valley second and Kilbride third. Inglewood also won the mens crown, with Kilbride second and Georgetown third.

Grand Valley was first in both the mens and ladies bucket races. Inglewood was second for both men and ladies while Milton was third in the mens bucket race.

Actario winners

Billy Middleton, 227 Mill St. East, was the winner of the monthly Actario trip draw. Middleton won a trip for two to the Muskoka resort or lodge of his choice.

Doris Kentner, 38 Victoria St., won the weekly draw for $350.

Merchant bonus vouchers from Jolliffe Shoes, Family Cleaners, Jug City and Wooden Heart Restaurant were won by Bella-Maye Roszell, Willow St. North. Bert and Grace Robertson's ticket won them vouchers from Family Cleaners, Holland shop and Ed's in 'N Out. The Robertsons live at 150 Tideoy Ave.

OMB may... and region's planning departments. Both were against the proposed severance. "It is unlikely that two viable farm units could be created by this application," according to the region.

"The property appears to have severely limited agricultural potential," states the town's report. Mrs. Houston agreed, however, she argued that the land is good for farming.

Definitions of farming and agriculture overlap, Mrs. Houston told LDC members.

"We've a garage full of equipment, ready to go," she told the committee. The family has cleared some parts of the property, but before doing more they decided to wait on the LDC's decision.

A previous owner used the property for cattle and maple bush, Houston's lawyer Gord Chapman said. The Fryers held the property for about 25 years.

Board's new lunch policy will not set teachers free

Teachers will not be able to escape pupils during lunch hour even if Halton's Board of Education adopts a new lunch policy.

"In no way are teachers completely free of duties," lunch policy committee chairman Florence Meares told other trustees Thursday at Burlington.

"Teachers are not going to have their lunch hours free," continued Meares.

The Burlington trustee indicated that the new policy will put the onus on communities and the principal "to carry on the type of program they wish."

The board will decide on the proposals during the June 11 meeting.

If a school already has a lunch system going which meets supervision criteria and which has the blessing of school staff and parents, it will not be bothered by the new policy.

Where a school and community can't get a lunch program underway, the principal may ask for paid supervision. In some Halton schools, parents volunteer to help schools during lunch.

Len Crosier, Oakville, cautioned that some groups who want something for nothing will move in and take advantage.

In north Halton some elementary pupils eat at classroom desks while others sit on gym floors in order to eat their lunch. They are supervised, sometimes by the principal, sometimes by teachers.

According to a board report 11 schools in Acton, Georgetown and Milton area where children eat while sitting on gym floors, have been checked for bacteria by the medical health officer. According to the board's area superintendent of plant operations, Harley Lishman, no bacteria was found. These were checks initiated by the board, according to Lishman.

This is the second attempt at forming a lunch policy by the board. The committee brought in a bid earlier which would have hired $100,000 worth of lunch supervisors.

Many parents were more interested in getting their children off the gym floors and onto some kind of seat so that they can eat their lunches.

Acton Citizens' Band president Bernie Freuler drew the Actario tickets Saturday morning.

Service at Knox honors police

There will be a special service at Knox Presbyterian Church this Sunday in honor of the Halton Regional Police. Lorne Doberthien, a member of the congregation and unofficial spokesman for the community to the police, announced this week.

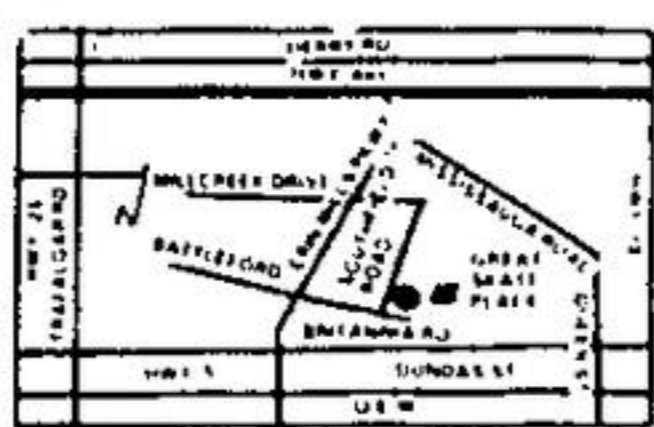

He said Chief James Harding, other police brass and local officers and their families will be in attendance.

Doberthien said the service is designed to "return the hand of friendship" to the force, which held a highly successful open house in Acton earlier this year to improve police-citizen relations.

St. Joseph's agreement

Halton Hills council approved a bylaw Monday night authorizing the execution of development agreement between Halton Separate School Board and the town for the building of the new St. Joseph's School on Mill St. West.
