Day care centre fall opening

Acton's first day care centre will open its doors in September, providing relief to a maximum of 39 sets of parents.

David Cromb, of Georgetown, recently opened up Village School Day Care Centre in Georgetown. While researching the need for a centre in that community, he also investigated Acton, and was surprised at the real need in both areas of Halton Hills.

Cromb, a former government employee is teamed up with his father George Cromb of Toronto for their local venture. George has been in the education field since 1949 and has spent the last several years working for the federal government setting up day care centres and kindergartens across the country.

Legion happenings

by Jim and Lily Higgins

Sorry there was no Legion Happenings column last week, we took a few days vacation. Sick members are F. Wright, Joan McKnight, A. Perry, D. Swetman and E. Ryder. There will be an executive meeting on Monday, August 10, and new members will be initiated at this meeting. There will be a corn roast later this month. More on that next week. There are still a few tickets available for the World Festival Tattoo at the CNE on Sunday, August 23. There are also a few seats left on the Ladies' Auxiliary bus trip on Saturday, August 29. The Ladies' Auxiliary donated $1,000 towards the cost of painting the building and $1,000 for general purposes.

ten students may be enrolled to participate in the classes while not in public school. Cromb says the future could see the centre open to accommodate shift workers, but he has no way of knowing the need or feasibility of such a program right now.

Located in the Alteo Construction building on Main Street, the centre is essentially ready to go. An open house and registration will be held later this month, and he hopes to see a lot of people out to it. In the meantime, Cromb can be reached at 877-7310.

Traffic survey

The Ministry of Transportation and Communication will be performing roadside surveys in Wellington County in August.

The Ministry will question the drivers briefly on the origin, destination, and purpose of their trip in hopes of assisting in future traffic planning. The survey sights will be at selected road areas and will be indicated by signs and lane control measures.
