

Acton's Tim Adema, 5, got to know this Charolais heifer.

Acton rabbit winners Diane Evans and Marilynne Petrie display their first prize New Zealand and French Lop does.

Ever seen a unicorn? These Belgians and Percherons are shown in a unicorn hitch.

Lincoln yearling rams are judged for type and quality.

Only a few pigs made it to the fair but they were cute.

Judge Bill Shrum checks out a white crested black polish bantam in the poultry competition.

What's a fair without animals?

Ross McLean won the $100 Standardbred stake with Kawartha Kim. John White Jr. is presenting the trophy donated by his father, Nelson White.

The number was down but the quality was up in English jumping classes according to a fair director.

So this is the Acton Fall Fair

Author-broadcaster H. Gordon Green delighted spectators with his droll wit while judging the record-breaking Galloway show.

Shelley Hamilton swings her mount round the pivot pole during pole bending races in the western horse show.

Best trained pet in the Pet Show was King, owned by Kelly Simon, Miss Acton Fall Fair Cindy McGilloway presented Kelly with her prize, a bag of Purina Dog Chow.

Faith Kent and Wildfres Paddy Parader receive the $100 Carriage Stake from Fair president Brian Evans.

Three year old Kristine Richards was the youngest competitor ever in the dairy show. Cousin Mervin Ella helped her win first junior Jersey heifer.

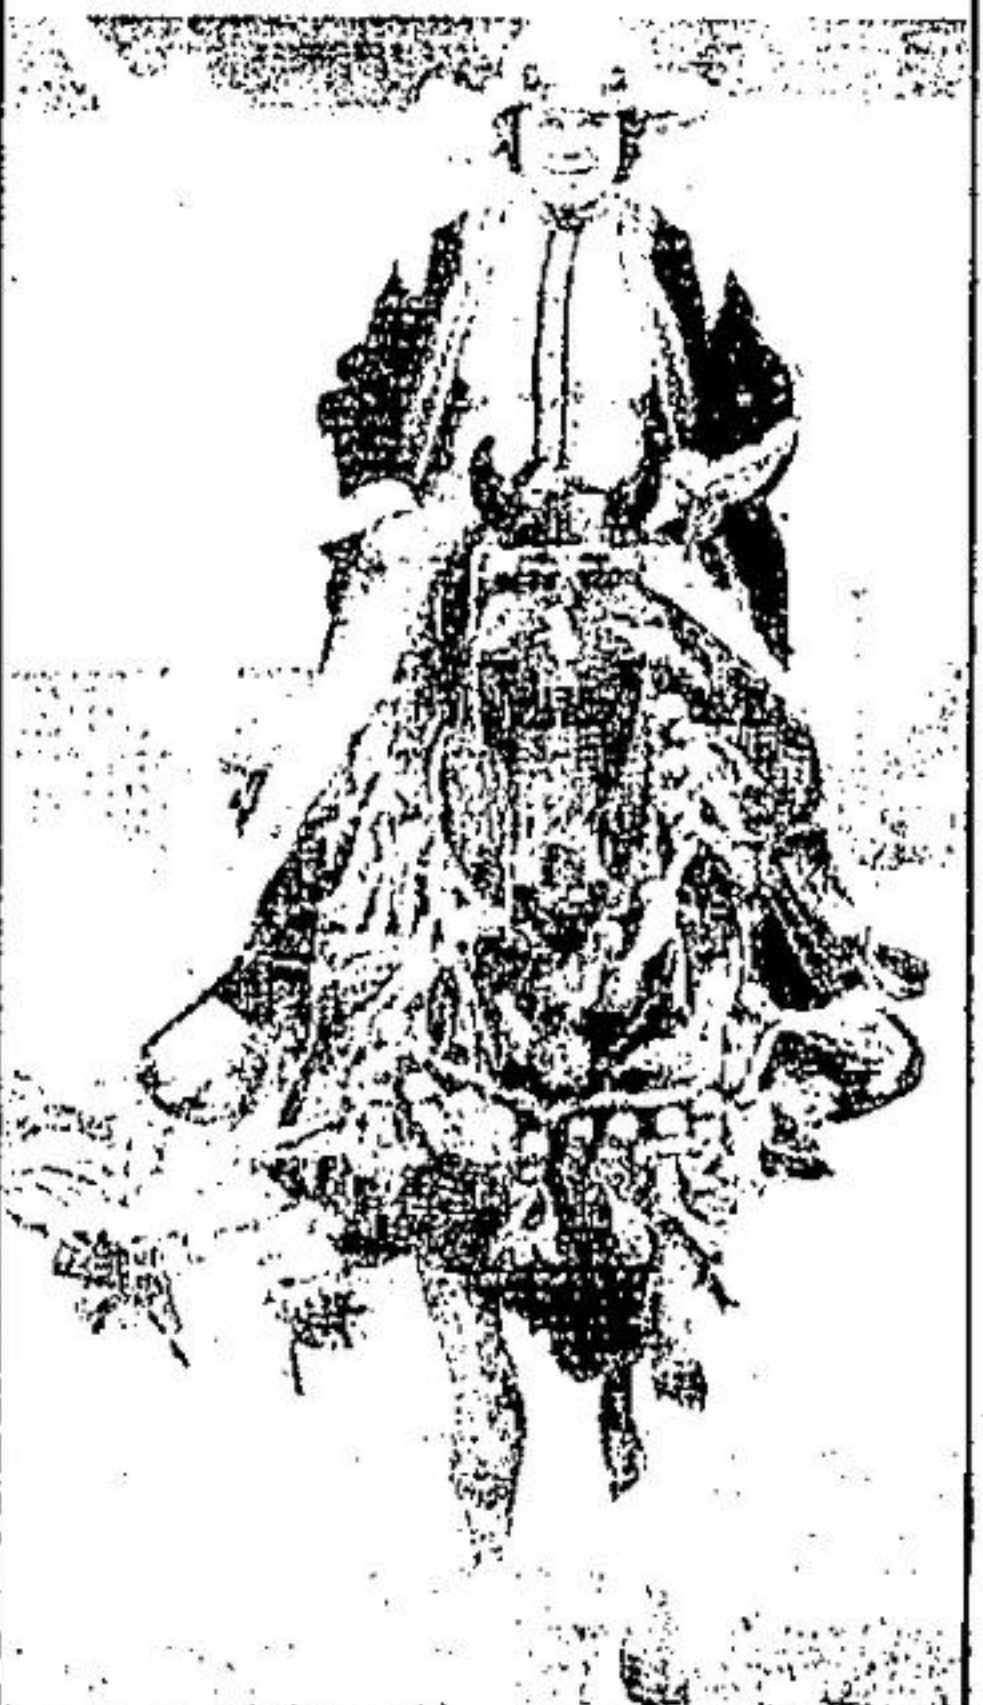

Vidal is my hairdresser - Galloway cattle classes were way up Saturday - this pretty cow was a winner.

Shetland ponies were all dolled up for Saturday's fine harness classes.

Ponies and kids go together and they did Saturday at the Gymkhana games.

Arabian costume classes provided considerable audience interest Friday afternoon.

Black and white classes are always crammed with fine Holstein dairy cattle.