Kelly MacDonald

Model is five years of age

by Helen Murray
Acton's Victoria Lenisky and Lisa McGrath are two former Miss Acton Fall Fairs who have made a name for themselves in the modelling world—Victoria in Paris, Lisa in Toronto. But there's one more name to add to the list of models from Acton, and she won't even be old enough to enter the Miss Acton contest for another 11 years.

Five-year-old Kelly MacDonald, daughter of Sandy and Mike MacDonald, 115 Kingham Rd., has been modelling for four years, quite an accomplishment for anyone her age.

But at 12 months old she modelled some clothes for Sears executives, and appeared in a Woolco brochure. She made an astounding $16.50 an hour.

The blonde haired, blue-eyed pixie was later photographed by Pringle and Booth Photographers for a Towers brochure, in which she appeared in a pair of overalls. She also did some modelling for Sears at the time.

At the ripe old age of four Kelly appeared in a Zoom Photographers layout of children's fashions in Canadian Weekly Magazine. When she turned five Kelly was put into the Jennifer Walmsley Modelling School to learn social manners and graces, personal grooming, photography photo make-up, pivots and turns, posture and walking, ramp work, and mannequin.

Kelly describes mannequin as standing perfectly still for long periods of time, "even if you have to scratch," much to the dismay of the active grade one student.

Kelly says she enjoys modelling, but doesn't know if she would like to do it when she grows up. She is comfortable when surrounded by glaring lights and cameras, yet she prefers to play quietly with her Barbie dolls. Her favorite subject at Robert Little school is art, and she is in the French Immersion.

Baby brother, Scott, aged two, doesn't seem to mind all the attention on his older sister, but he does like to get his picture taken with her.

Kelly hasn't done any jobs since graduating from modelling school in June, but Jennifer Walmsley, her teacher, is optimistic for Kelly's future. Right now she is negotiating a major television commercial for

Attempt fur theft

One suspect was apprehended while police search for another involved in a break and enter and theft case at the Olde Hide House Saturday at 3.45 p.m.

Hide House security staff captured a suspect from Erin who was attempting to steal about 12 furs worth $23,000. The other suspect fled and Halton Regional Police report their investigation is continuing.

Lakeside IODE

Candy making demonstrated

An intriguing demonstration of candy making was shown by members of Lakeside chapter of the IODE by Inez Crichton of Limehouse, at their October meeting. Sampling the results was an added pleasure.

Regent Heien Jocque and services chairman Joyce Sprawl reported on the fall conference and seminar they attended in Sudbury. Joyce appealed again for used eye glasses and hearing aids for the Caribbean.

Annual donations were approved, several for special IODE projects in Labrador. A new project is the purchase of nine instruments for a school band at Goose Bay, Labrador.

Velma West reported $170 raised at the fair through the sale of draw tickets.

Santa's coming

Santa Claus is coming to town. Halton Hills recently approved the annual Acton Y's Men's Club Santa Claus parade on November 28 from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m.

The parade will assemble at McKenzie-Smith Middle School and will move down Mill St. to Park and over to Knox ending at Main.

Council approved the parade route subject to Halton Regional Police approval with extra permission at the railway crossing on Mill St.
