Sabres ordered not to retaliate to Georgetown's cheap shots

by Dan McGilloway

Georgetown Gemini won on the score sheet and the fistcuffs Friday night against the Acton Sabres at the Community Centre.

However Sabres only lost fights because coach Jules Russiani had instructed his players not to retaliate for the Gems "cheap shots."

Sabres didn't retaliate and were still evicted from the game. Roy Spear covered up in a fight and was still penalized. Ken Whetham and Don Brown never threw a punch in their fights and were still ejected from the game. Whetham also received stitches above his right eye in the fight.

One of the Gemini players tried to hit the referee with his stick while in the penalty box, breaking it over the glass. Then outside the penalty box he tried to get at the referee and was ejected from the game.

The game was tied at 4 when Georgetown started to play goon-style hockey and the game ended up 8-4 in Gemini favor.

Russiani said, "I don't want to see our boys get into fights. They're getting paid for officiating games and are not earning it, fans believe their inconsistency is what leave coaches and players puzzled."

Referees do a thankless job, but they are getting paid for their knowledge. All fans, players and coaches want is more consistency.

Tonight (Wednesday) the Sabres are at home to undefeated Oakville at 8:30. Friday Sabres host Richmond Hill at 8 p.m. in the Acton Community Centre.

Referees are all you hear about in the arenas. They're getting paid for officiating games and are not earning it, fans believe their inconsistency is what leave coaches and players puzzled.

Players take cheap shots, retaliate and get penalized for the same thing they received skating down the ice.

Friday night's game was Acton Minor Hockey Night a bad game for the younger boys to be watching to learn how to play hockey. Some of the fans left in DISGUST.

Ken Whetham is separated from a Gemini by the linesmen in action Friday night. Like other Sabres, Whetham didn't retaliate in the fight and was cut in the process. Despite the fact he wasn't throwing punches he was still ejected. Players were ordered not to retaliate by coach Jules Russiani because he didn't want players suspended with important games coming up.
