

Hydro microwave tower is on hold

Plans to erect an Ontario Hydro microwave communications tower in Erin Township are on hold.

Hydro spokesperson Brenda Harris said in an interview this week nothing has been done on this project since a public meeting in the spring when citizens learned more about the tower and commented on the seven proposed sites. Plans for the tower, which needs to be close to the 500 kV power corridor, were first announced last summer.

Mrs. Harris noted all Hydro projects are now being re-evaluated in light of spending restraints.

A decision is expected sometime in August-September on the fate of capital projects. The tower might receive a green light or be delayed.
