

Longer stay at hostel

Women will be able to stay longer at Halton Women's Place. Halton Region's Health and Social Service Committee is planning to extend the time women can stay at the hostel and be subsidized by the region. Previously, Halton's social Services Department has allowed single women a three-day stay at the Milton hostel, paying a per diem rate to the hostel. Women with dependent children have been granted a five-day stay. Reports from the hostel, however, indicate that in many cases the women have a hard time finding alternative accommodation. A letter to the region from the Halton Women's Place board of directors is requesting the length of stay be extended to five days for single women 18 years of age or over, and two weeks for women with dependent children.

$93,500 in grants for two Halton alcohol, drug programs

One $71,500 to an Oakville program assisting people dependent on drugs and a second grant of $22,000 to a recovery house in Milton for alcoholics have been announced by the Ontario Ministry of Health.

Health Minister Larry Grossman said, "Our aim is to assist people with alcohol and drug problems to become reintegrated into the community. For compassionate and practical reasons, the health ministry is committed to assisting in the rehabilitation of these people. It's a fact now in Ontario that 11 per cent of adult health care costs are attributed to alcohol alone."

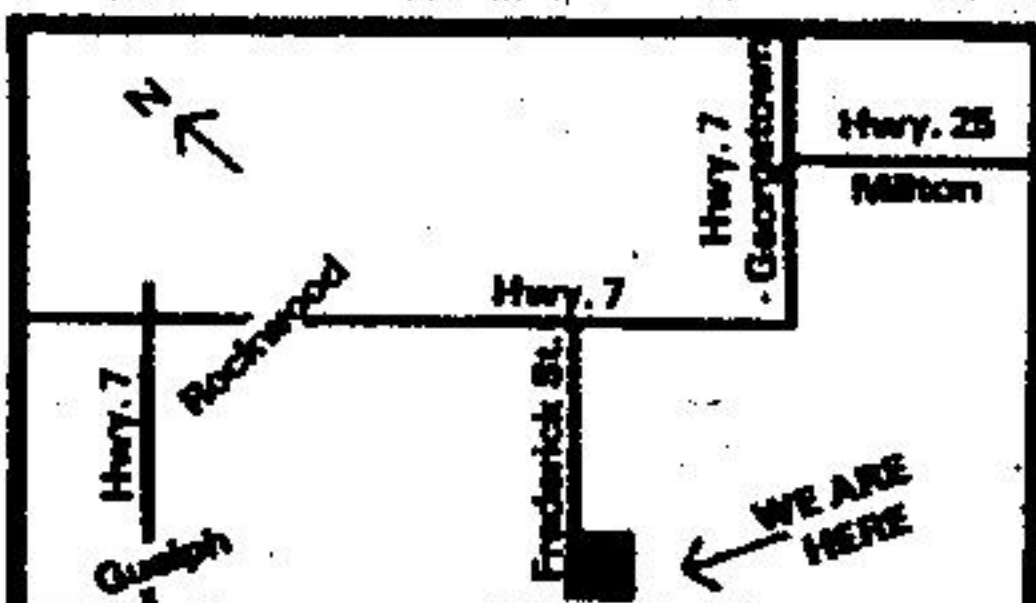

The grant to the Halton Alcohol & Drug Addiction Project (ADAPT) at 136 Randall Street in Oakville will be used to operate a supportive treatment network for people who depend on drugs; the network is integrated through community health and social service agencies.

A second grant to Halton Recovery House at R.R. 3, Milton, will be used to operate the alcoholics' recovery home, which accepts referrals from the entire Halton region.
