

ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

This week through the lens

New St. Joseph's School taking shape

Photos by Gord and Helen Murray

Workmen have started to clean up the St. Joseph's School grounds as the project moves to the final weeks before the start of classes in September.

Walter Weber, of Weber Construction, carefully measures the floor tiles as they go down.

The light fixtures in the teachers' cafeteria were put in last Wednesday. George Hinden, of Green's Electric, did a lot of the electrical work.

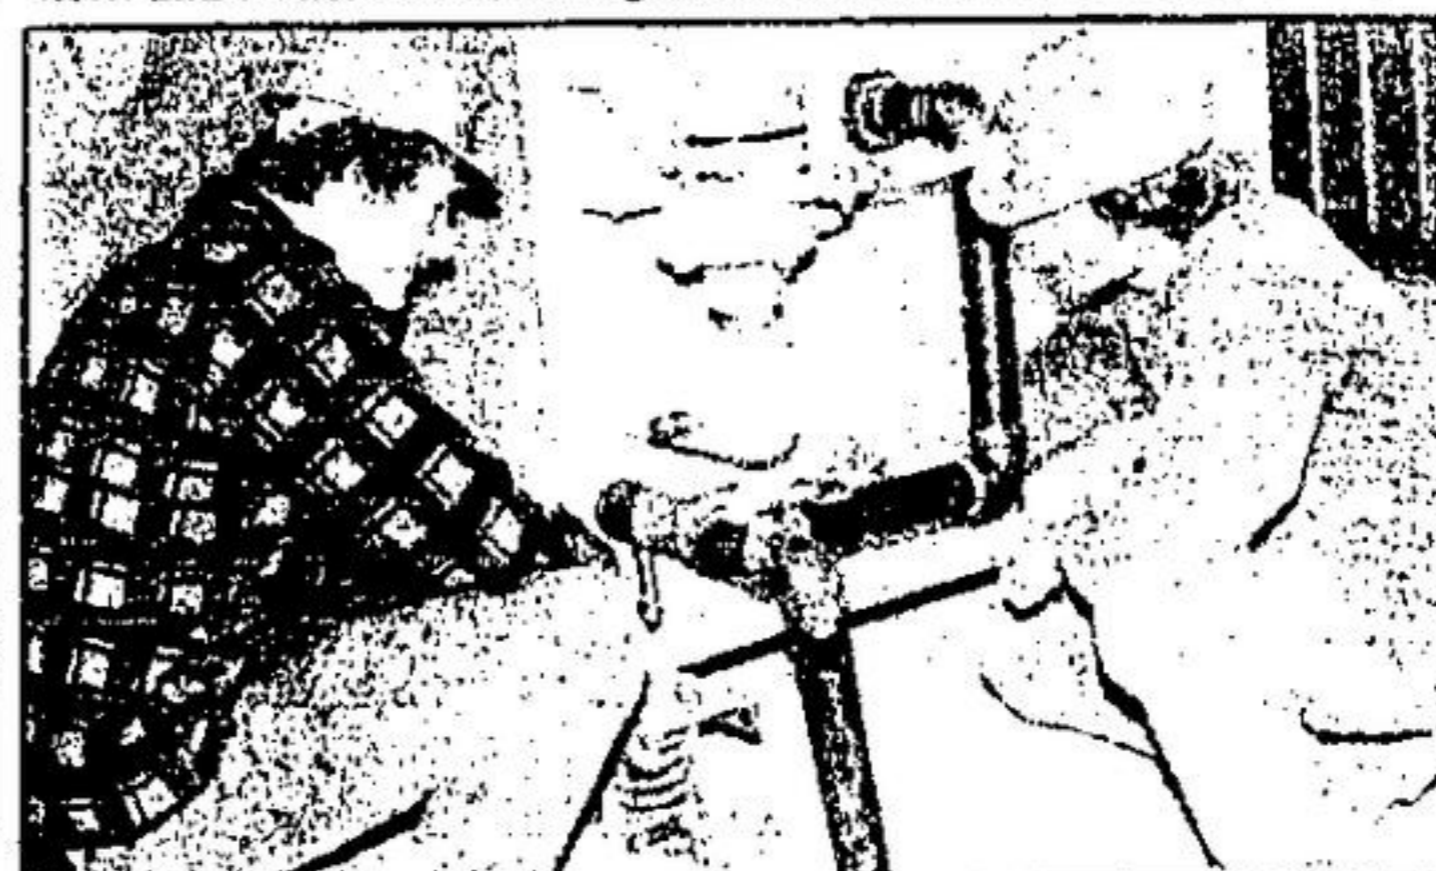

Westdale Painting employee Harold Kannenberg paints the back door foyer.

Rueben Pfeffer and Rob Reinhardt, of Mecon Mechanical thread pipe for the heating system.

Hilton Hills separate school board trustee Irene McCauley goes over the plans for St. Joseph's school with Alan Burns, construction site foreman (left) and Walter Weber, of the general contractor Weber Construction.

Checking the cooling system in the boiler room are Rob Klein and Gabe Krajnyak, of Mecon Mechanical.

A workman drills holes through the pattern for the St. Joseph's School name which went on the building Thursday.

The big roller pounds down the ground as work on the grounds at Acton's new school is under way.
