Household Hints

by Pauline McElroy

If a metal zipper gets a little stubborn, rub with a pencil (graphite is a fine lubricant) or a bit of silicone polish (dirt).

Soap will last longer if you take off the wrapper and let cake harden a few weeks before using. It's scum the linen closet nicely, too.

Paint can lids won't stick if, as soon as you open the can, you punch holes around the rim with a nail. Paint drips will go right back into the can.

To keep carving boards looking good longer, rub with salad oil now and then. Slather it on, let dry a few moments, and wipe off excess.

Add a splash of cooking oil to the boiling water for pasta. Keeps strands from sticking.
