

New curator at Museum

A new curator has been hired for Halton Region Museum. Beginning November 1 Ernest Buchner, 37, now director-curator of the Muskoka Pioneer Village, in Huntsville, will start his duties in Milton.

After graduation from Western University, with a post-graduate degree in history, Buchner was curator of the St. Clair Regional Conservation Museum in Strathroy, then executive assistant for the Ontario Historical Society before taking up his Muskoka position.

The Halton Museum, with six buildings consisting of a farm house, barn, log cabin, blacksmith's shop, carriage house and craft house, has been in operation for 20 years, and is located on six acres of the Kelso Conservation Area.
