Exports are vital to Canada. Without foreign sales, the pulp and paper industry would be a fifth of its current size, with thousands of fewer jobs.
 Canada's traditional exports still earn the lion's share of foreign currency. Exports of forest products are the largest net contributor to Canada's trade balance. In fact, they account for more than the next three groups of products combined.
 Eighty per cent of Canada's pulp and paper production is sent to compete in foreign markets. Every load of pulp and paper shipped overseas supports hundreds of Canadian jobs.
 The policies of governments at all levels, of pulp and paper companies and of labour must reflect the importance of cost competitive exports.
 For more information about the challenges facing Canada's leading industry, send for "Pulp and Paper Reports: Cost Competitiveness", a free booklet from Public Information Services, Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, Sun Life Building, Suite 2300, 1155 Metcalfe Street, Montreal, Quebec, H3B 2X9.
