Random comments

Mayor Pete Pomeroy commenting on the election saw the results as proving there were issues in an allegedly "no-issue" election.

He said the user-pay policy for recreation must be one and addressed the aggregate issue as another major thrust in the flesh of rural voters. "You can't pass an Official Plan without making somebody mad," commented the mayor, "but I can't be unhappy when I won 94 of 96."

Pam Sheldon who topped the polls in Ward Two attributed her success to a door to door campaign where she met and talked with so many people. "That's where you really hear the grassroots, and it's more important to listen than to talk."

"I'm glad it's over, and now we can get back to the business of looking after the children's education," was school board trustee Betty Fisher's only comment.

Finn Poulstrup was surprised he won. He said he thought he would come in third, when he saw the first returns start coming in. "Boy, that was a close race with three of us running neck and neck."

Phil Carney was delighted and said, "What's so great about it, it was done with only the help of my family and some good friends. I really appreciate all they did."
