Outdoors

with George Hoare

The saw mills in and around Huntsville, Ontario, are displaying an abundance of good-sized logs that will keep the big saws humming all winter.

This photo shows Len Burns standing on a marketable pine; I call it a marketable one because Len told me of others not far away that would make this one look like a sapling. How big?—4', 6" at the base. One log will produce several thousand board feet at the mill.

Big skidders haul several of these out to the loading zone in one trip. That's in contrast to the bygone days of the bush horse.

Twin Foxes

The other photo shows Len Burns with twin fox pelts that overseas buyers bid very highly for at the North Bay fur sales. Prices that exceed $150 are not unusual for a choice fox pelt.

The Burns family is well known to many local people; bush life comes natural to Len, Ben, and Harvey Burns because they have lived in Sprucedale all their lives. Sprucedale is northwest of Huntsville on the Bear Lake, Parry Sound road.

It's scramble time, so Enjoy the Outdoors, Safe Journey and Tight Lines, and be sure and have a Merry Christmas
