Rabies threat real — Health Minister

Ontario Health Minister Larry Grossman is urging all Ontario residents to arm themselves in the fight against rabies.

"The increased incidences of rabies in Ontario is alarming and a serious threat to all pet owners, farmers and anyone who may come into contact with domestic or wild animals," Grossman said.

In 1982, 2,281 animals were found to be rabid, and 2,402 people were treated for possible exposure to rabies, the largest number ever recorded in the province. The number of humans treated increased by about 120 per cent over 1980 and the number of animal cases by 47 per cent, according to Dr. Alvin Evans, senior veterinarian with the Ministry of Health.

There were 47 cases of rabies in animals diagnosed in Halton in 1981 and 20 in 1982. Peel had 72 cases in 1981 and 30 in 1982.

"The most part the human exposures are due to carelessness," Dr. Evans said. "People insist on letting their pets roam, and are careless about handling stray, sick or dead animals. Domestic pets and animals account for only eight per cent of rabid animals. However, of the 16,000 humans treated for rabies in the past 10 years, more than 50 per cent were treated because of contact with known rabid stray dogs and cats."

Rabies is most often transmitted by skunks, and foxes to domestic animals such as dogs, cats, horses, cows and even pigs.

A dramatic increase in the number of treatments in 1982 cost Ontario about $1.5 million in vaccines alone.

Each time a person is treated with the five-injection inoculation series, the price tag is about $600. Add to the figure the cost of tracing victims, administration, laboratory and doctors' fees and the cost soars even higher, Dr. Evans says.

For example:

In a recent series of episodes in one area documented by the ministry, several domestic dogs fought with rabid foxes. The dogs were subsequently handled by a number of family members, friends and neighbours. Cost for treating 66 individuals for possible exposure to rabies: $39,000 for vaccine alone, quite apart from the emotional strain and inconvenience involved.

A family dog encountered a rabid fox in a garage. Before the pet could be quarantined it came into contact with 10 children and eight adults. Cost for just the treatment was $9,500.

Rabies is a contagious and fatal disease which is spread from one animal to another or from an animal to a human via biting or the contact of open wounds or membranes with infected saliva. If the infection is established in the nervous system and symptoms develop, death is inevitable.

SOUTHERN ONTARIO HAS HIGHEST INCIDENCE

Southern Ontario has the highest incidence of wildlife rabies per area in North America, accounting for at least 80 per cent of all reported cases in Canada.

Bites or other close contact with an animal suspected of having rabies must, by law, be reported immediately to a medical officer of health and a doctor should be consulted without delay.

From the time an animal is infected with rabies until the symptoms begin to show can be as short as one week or more than six months. Those symptoms may vary according to the type of animal affected, but a dramatic change in temperament, such as friendliness in a wild animal, is usually indicative of rabies.

A dog or cat suspected of having been exposed to rabies is quarantined for six months or the owners may decide to have the animal destroyed.

A person who has been exposed to the saliva of a rabid animal must begin the anti-rabies vaccination series. It takes a month to complete the series of six injections. The vaccine usually doesn't produce severe side effects but some people may experience nausea, weakness and headaches.

PUBLIC AWARENESS CRITICAL

A number of precautions must be taken:

- Vaccinate all dogs and cats.
- Vaccinate farm or domestic animals particularly those in contact with a number of people such as in riding schools or in displays.
- Keep pets on a leash, particularly in areas where other animals are likely to be encountered.
- Keep pets, especially cats, indoors at night.
- Stay away from all wild animals; especially discourage children from approaching any stray animals who may appear to be friendly.
- Do not touch any dead animal. If doing so it unavoidable, wear leather mitts or gloves.
- Do not kill a suspected rabid animal unless it attacks. Isolate it, if possible, and seek assistance from the police or humane society. Where there has been human contact and the animal is killed, make sure the head is kept for laboratory examination.
- If a family pet shows signs of being sick, and if there is any possibility of exposure to a rabid animal, contact a veterinarian.

The bagpipes are coming

The skirl of pipes will again be heard in the land June 11, when for the eighth consecutive year the Speyside Highland Games comes to Fairgrounds Park, Georgetown, June 11.

Honorary Chieftain and honorary Scot of the day, Henry (Mac) Shannon, a familiar voice on CFRB, will open the games, where the now familiar massed bands and Highland dancing will highlight the day.

The brawny kilted contestants will toss the caber, throw the hammer, and take part in the traditional events.

A demonstration of the skill used by sheepdogs in rounding up the flock, and karate displays will add to the fun.

A large tented cheer garden will refresh the visitors and if as the Scots contend God is one of them, the day will be warm and sunny.

Vice-principals are transferred

Speyside school vice principal Gus Elliott has been transferred to J.M. Derynes school in Milton, as of September 1, Halton Board of Education approved the move Thursday evening.

Ken Trowbridge, of Glen Williams school has been sent to Speyside to replace Elliott.
