Playground requested before homes occupied

Before people are allowed to move into the new semi-detached homes planned for west side of Greenore Cres. a small parcel of land which will become a creative playground for the Kingham area must be seeded and sodded by the developer.

Monday night Halton Hills council approved an extensive, though mostly standard, agreement for the building of the five semi-detached (10 units) homes with D.M. Consultants.

Besides seeding and sodding the land which will become a park, the developer must also put up a sign designating the land a "playground". Council put $10,000 in a reserve fund to pay for building of the playground.

The developer will have to build fences behind the homes and beside them where they abut the playground or the huge open space or swamp.

Usual engineering requirements for drainage and grading are covered in the agreement and the Town has control over location of driveways into the homes.

Restrictions governing construction and alteration to the regional storm floodline of the Black Creek, behind the new homes, will be registered on the land titles.

No building permits will be issued for this development until the region has determined there is water capacity to service the 10 units. Council passed bylaws to finalize the rezoning of these lands for the development as well as to execute the agreement. In addition later the Town will pass a "part lot control exemption bylaw" which will be forwarded to the region for formal approval.

Bike-car collide

A 13-year-old McKenzie-Smith student riding her bicycle on McDonald Blvd. last Monday night collided with a car, police say.

Marla Brillinger was riding her bike west-bound on McDonald Blvd. at the intersection of Mason Blvd at 9:20 p.m. when the collision with a car driven by Sherry Halliday, 19 of Acton, occurred.

The cyclist sustained minor injuries in the accident.

If Raftis quits...

The regional councillor who nominated Chairman Jack Raftis for reelection last November is interested in the job, should Raftis resign by the end of the year.

Burlington councillor Pat McLaughlin said he is interested in the job and will run for it if Raftis steps down.

"No doubt I'll be interested in the job if it comes up," said McLaughlin, after Wednesday's council meeting.
