PUBLIC NOTICE

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

The Council of the Regional Municipality of Halton has given first and second reading to a by-law which sets out the process both for access to meetings of Regional Council, its committees, and the availability of information appearing on the Agenda of Regional Council and its committees.

A Public Awareness Committee has been established and it has been directed by Regional Council to obtain the views of the public regarding this by-law.

Copies of this by-law may be obtained by calling the undersigned. Written comments are requested from members of the public and should be received prior to August 22.

A meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 21, 1983, 7:00 p.m. at the Regional Administration Building to review and discuss the comments received prior to making a final submission to Council.

These trusses will be reinforced with fir, channel iron and 1/4 inch steel plate to meet today's standards for roof loads.

With all the bracing and scaffolding, "the building shouldn't come down" while the work is being done.

All the old mouldings and roof decorations on the second floor have been taken down, some in pretty good shape. Patterns and moulds have been made and many of these features will be reproduced in the new hall.

Also all the interior walls have been stripped to the brick, there's evidence of an old fire on one wall. The old walls were wood, lathe and plaster and the wood was set into the brick and had shrunk. Where possible this wood has been removed and replaced with brick.

Wall studs of 2 by 4 pieces have been put up and insulation will be put in to help with heating in winter and cooling in summer of the great hall.

Specially fabricated steel for the top floor is being made now.

Another safety feature is that the inside scaffolding has been connected or tied to the exterior scaffolding.

"When we're done there's no reason why it won't last another 100 years. It will probably be in better shape than it was when it was built," Tyler said.

There isn't a lot of evidence of things being accomplished yet "because we've done a lot of tearing down and fixing that people can't see."

Besides the many time consuming jobs which had to be done, Tyler noted there have been delays awaiting drawings and specs as well as various approvals.

"There are days you wonder what you got into. But, after all this tearing down, we are starting to put things back and when you see that it makes you feel good." While the project's two to three weeks behind schedule, Tyler expects everything to be back on track soon. Because the project is under budget, crew sizes will be larger the next little while so a few more people will have a job thanks to this project.

The addition hasn't been dropped either, Tyler feels they are close to an agreement with the fire department about how large an access alley they should have at the side of the building.

The first floor former council chambers will be a meeting room while the old police office will be a rented office. There will be a kitchen and serving area on both the first and second floors. There are plans for a nostalgia corner and an old jail cell will be another Acton history display area. Washrooms on both floors will have handicapped facilities, there's a semi-circular ramp planned to the first floor from the addition and an elevator to the second. A parkette in front of the addition, with an old fashioned light and park bench, is contemplated. A small community information office is also shown on the revised architect's drawings.

This addition is smaller than the one first proposed by Heritage Acton and Tyler said if the firefighters go along with this plan they feel they can get a make-work grant to help fund it.

But the addition is no pressing matter yet, they want to keep plugging away at the old hall first.

"It's really like building a new building, except doing it the hard way," Tyler said of the restoration project. "It's sort of like when you restore an old car."

Tyler feels they are about half way done the job. "We can start to see what the end result will be like and it's something we can be proud of."
