Dramatic Arts for youngsters
The Halton Hills Recreation Department has restructured their children's Dramatic Arts program to feature new age groupings where activities will be planned to encourage imagination and self expression. Susan McGowan will once again be returning as the head instructor of Dramatic Arts. Susan has many years of drama experience and enthusiasm to contribute to the success of the program.
Children, 7-9 years, will be introduced to various aspects of drama such as movement, music and expression through theatre games and exercises. Improvisation will be used to create "make-believe" characters and situations.
Participants, 10-12 years, will explore ways of expressing ideas through creative skits, mime, improvisation and movement.
Activities designed to improve concentration and sense awareness will be used. Participants from 13 to 15 years will gain experience with various theatre skills and techniques used in performance situations. Previous experience in drama is not necessary as upon completion of the program everyone will have developed the basic skills and confidence desired to become involved in school or community productions.
The location for all Dramatic Arts programs is Wigglesworth Public School, on Guelph Street in Georgetown. Registration has already begun for both the Fall and Winter sessions. Sign up at either Recreation Office, 25 James Street, Georgetown or 40 Mill Street, East, Acton. Mail-in registrations are also accepted using the form in the Recreation Department's Fall and Winter Brochure. Call 877-5185, ext. 60 for more information.
