Victim Jim Kerrigan receives prompt first aid for a possible broken leg by Al Bousfield (foreground) and David Pipier. Kerrigan, Bousfield and Pipier were all taking part in a St. John Ambulance First Aid course organized and sponsored by the AMHA.

Coaches learn first aid

Over the past few months the Acton Minor Hockey Executive has been urging coaches to take coaching courses and most recently a St. John Ambulance first aid course.

The first aid course, organized and sponsored by the AMHA, is being offered to all coaching staff and executive members in an effort to have someone with first aid instruction at all minor hockey games.

Carol Robinson, vice-president of minor hockey, said the majority of the coaches now have at least a level two coaching certificate as well as the first aid course.

"I'm sure these courses will be beneficial for both the hockey players and the parents who will rest a little easier knowing if their child is hurt there will be someone qualified to perform first aid."

The St. John Ambulance First Aid course was held at the McKenzie-Smith Middle School on the last two Sundays.

Leathertown returns to its winning ways

Sunday afternoon the Leathertown's men's soccer team got back to their winning ways with a convincing 4-2 win against Lesan of Clarkson.

Sunday's game saw the local team take early control with a great mid-air volley from Dave Entwistle for the first goal.

Bob Little scored the second goal with the help of a header from Jamie Taras to give Leathertown a 2-0 lead.

Excellent mid-field play from Mitch Jeffreys and strong defensive play from Peter Wright kept the local team in control of the game.

Leson, undaunted, came back with two goals, but great saves by goaltender Mike Masson kept the Clarkson team at bay.

Tony Wright clinched the Leathertown victory with two opportunistic goals ending a personal goal scoring slump.

The Acton team, despite winning their way through the semi finals, have dropped points in their previous four league games, but are now on the rebound.

Thanksgiving weekend will see Leathertown playing against Georgetown Sunday and Mississauga on Monday.

Leathertown, now with six league games left, are ideally placed to take the second division title as they are now placed in the top half of the division.
