Interest in Scouting is on the upswing

There has been a 145 percent increase in members of the Rockwood Scouts, Cubs and Beavers in five years, according to Bob Hammond, spokesman for the organization. Hammond, who started in the scouting organization nine years ago, noted five years ago there were just 10 Scouts and 24 Cubs. Now there are 39 Cubs, 30 Beavers and 12 Scouts.

There are several reasons for the dramatic increase in the interest and membership in Scouting," said Hammond, "the biggest being there is a great deal of community support. The community has made schools and halls available to all groups of Scouts at no charge. When there is a fund raising drive we have no problems at all reaching our objectives."

"There is also faith in the movement," continued Hammond. "The parents want to have their children in Scouting because the kids have a good time and they learn."

"The Rockwood area scouts also have good leaders," remarked Hammond, although we do have a problem finding enough leaders to take on all the children that want to join."

The Rockwood Scouting organization also receives a great deal of help from the district leaders who come by quite often to give advice and participate in their activities.

"Pete Dubois has been terrific," commented Hammond, "he's our district representative and has gone above the call of duty to help the new Beavers and Cub packs get under way smoothly."

"For the future," concluded Hammond, "I hope to see the movement continue to grow and prosper as it has in the last five years."
