Support group helps fight cancer

We've all heard cancer can be beaten. But encouraging a cancer patient to fight is another story.

With the start of a support group called "Living with Cancer" Thurs., Mar. 8, help will have arrived in Halton. The program, sponsored by the Canadian Cancer Society, is open to cancer patients, their friends and family.

An 11-member advisory group composed

Betty Fisher Chairman

Wally Beavor
Director of Education

of representatives from the local medical profession, public health workers, clergy and Victorian Order of Nurses (VON) is responsible for establishing the Milton-based group.

The original support group dates back to 1978 at Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto. The need for the service was recognized when volunteer drivers who transport patients to treatment centres noticed their passengers needed to talk about their feelings.

"The anger cancer patients feel has to be dealt with and diffused," said advisory group member Carolyn Keyworth.

Mrs. Keyworth is one of five leaders trained at a Cancer Society sponsored clinic to conduct support sessions. Each meeting will involve two leaders and up to 10 participants.

Considering the nature of the groups, Mrs. Keyworth said some one-to-one contact could be arranged prior to participation in "Living with Cancer".

In addition to offering support, referrals and contact with those who are successfully living with the disease, the leaders can help sort out medical jargon.

"We can help patients formulate questions to ask of their doctors and help interpret the answers," Mrs. Keyworth said.

The duration of the program, held in the clinical classroom at Milton District Hospital, will depend on demand. The group will meet every second Thursday evening.

Living with cancer successfully "is something you learn," noted Mrs. Keyworth.

Employed as a VON, she admits she has never had the disease but said she can picture some of the emotions attached to the experience.

"Emotional support is needed by friends and family. They will have feelings which are not being dealt with," she explained.

"Leaders aren't there to solve problems—they are there to facilitate."

Even if certain problems cannot be solved through group contact, organizers hope for a different type of benefit.

"Research shows a patient's emotional state has a bearing on treatment. A good fighting attitude combined with treatment can sometimes make the difference," Mrs. Keyworth suggested.

Three more local people will be trained as group leaders in June in anticipation of a good response to Living with Cancer. Similar groups operate in Mississauga, Brampton and Hamilton.

Halton residents interested in participating in the Milton group should contact Elinor Shannon at 878-1876.

New superintendent

Halton Board of Education approved the hiring of Gerry Jenkins for the position of Superintendent of Business Services and Treasurer, effective August 1. He replaced Ron Warren.

Moratorium bid fails

A bid to have a temporary moratorium on school closures by a Burlington trustee failed Thursday evening.

Peter Abbott made a trustee's notice of motion to halt school closures until 1988 and requested a study be carried out to determine a long range plan for the future schooling system.

His fellow trustees, however, felt they couldn't support the request, mainly from a financial and educational point of view.
