RECYCLE
 Recycle pottery, chipped mugs, glasses or vases by using them as planters for trailing ivy. Drill a hole in the bottom or put a layer of stones in the bottom for drainage, fill with soil and train the ivy to hide chips.

Study reaches council

After more than a year of study, Regional Council now has the final report on its role in health and social services for Halton's elderly.

It is the fifth study of the needs and services for the elderly in the region since 1977 and makes 18 recommendations to regional council.

Among the recommendations of the study team of Peat Marwick and Peter G. Crichton & associates, management consultants:

—That Halton adopt a housing policy emphasizing the maintenance of the elderly in their own communities in "an integrated and independent fashion." A housing coordinator should also be hired to undertake a housing study.

—A major restructuring of Halton Centennial Manor should be conducted over a 10 year period. The Manor would operate as a small care facility in Milton while private, non-profit and voluntary chronic care options would be encouraged in the other communities.

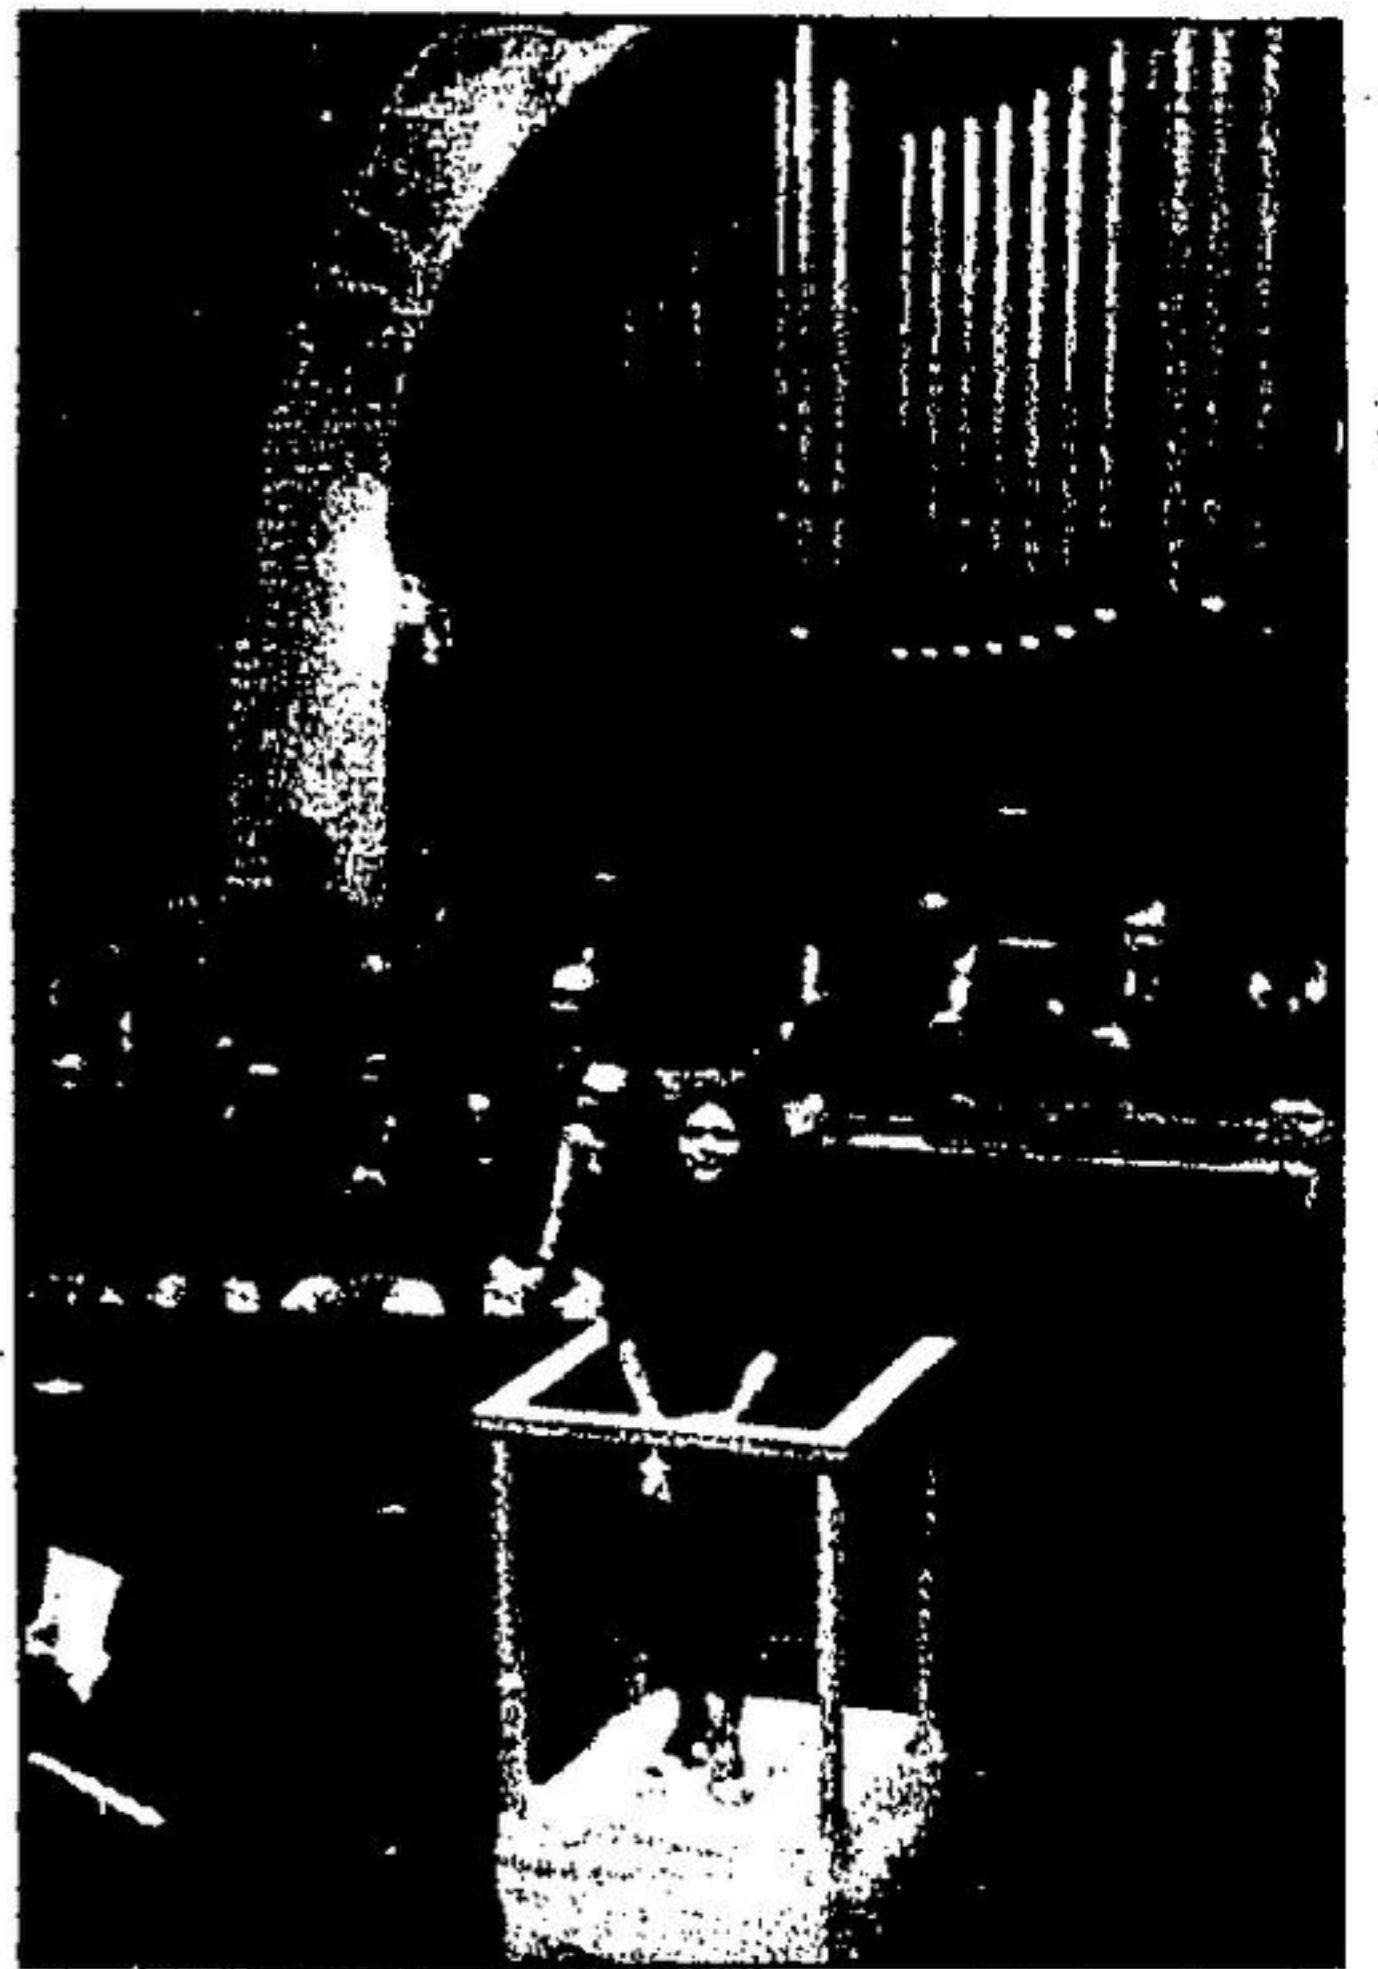

—That Supplementary Aid be provided to pensioners in the form of a taxi fare assistance program to lessen the impact on the elderly of high taxi costs.

—Social service grants should be used to develop new community support services. Existing services should be funded with purchase of service agreements with the region rather than grants, as is now the case, in order to give council more control over standards.

—The region should study the feasibility of a consumer and professional awareness program for health and social services for the elderly.

—The region should work closely with the Halton District Health Council and all hospitals in Halton to develop a placement coordination service.

The findings and recommendations of the elderly study will be debated by regional council today.

Soprano Elizabeth Wood delighted concert goers Saturday when she sang operatic arias at the Acton performance of the Hamilton Orpheus Male Choir at Knox Church.

Dean's Award for C. Brunelle

Carol Brunelle, of Acton, was recently presented with the Dean's Award for her chef diploma course at George Brown College, Toronto. The award is given out for academic achievement.

Carol received her award, a cheque and plaque at a special reception March 1 at the college, at which her husband Steve attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Manes are pleased to announce the engagement of their only daughter Shelley Ann to Kelly McArthur, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McArthur Hillsburgh. The marriage will take place October 27, 1984 in Knox Presbyterian Church, Acton.

Semis proposed

An application has been made to the town of Halton Hills to construct a semi-detached house on Park Avenue.

F.J. Reinders and Associates Canada Limited have made this application on behalf of Beralav Skoko. Existing buildings will be removed to make way for the new structure.
