

Oh to be in Florida now Spring is here

I hate to admit it, after what I've written in the past, but I'm sitting in Florida writing this column. It makes me feel like a heel, knowing that my friends are going through the dying throes of the chancy month of April.

I don't want to be here. I despise myself for sitting in Sarasota, in my shorts, looking out the window at a lot of palm trees and a small man-made lake where the ducks come splashing in.

It literally hurts me inside when I lie on a chaise lounge beside the swimming pool and consider what a rotten traitor I am to my class, my friends, my way of life and my principles. Sometimes a tear rolls down my face. I'm never quite sure whether it's self-disgust or the sun being too strong on my wintry blue eyes.

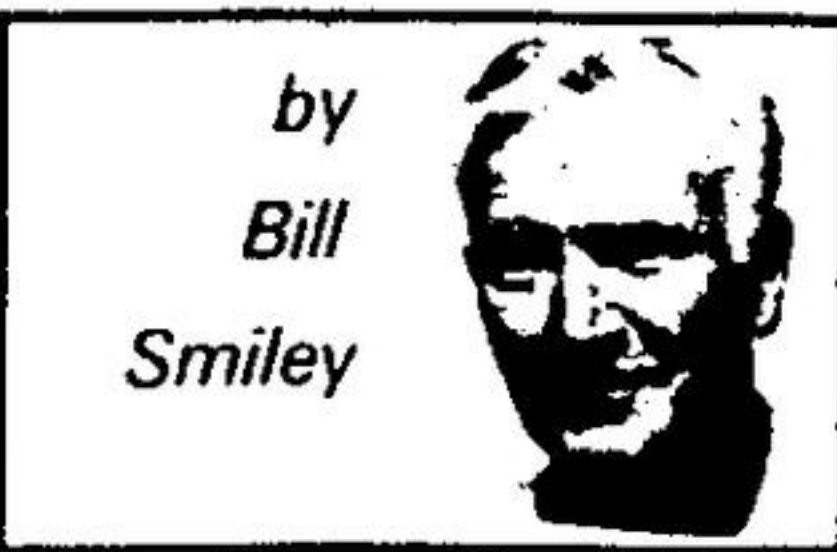

However, you'll be glad to know that I didn't want to come here. I fought it as cleverly as a fox trying to out-fox the hounds. I had several friends who invited me to come down and stay with them. My little brother, the Colonel, called me up a couple of times, and demanded what flight I would be on, before I'd even thought of getting a ticket. He was quite peremptory, as is his wont. He gave me a great deal of useless advice, as though I had never been outside the country before, even though I've travelled all over the U.K., Europe, and most of Canada, never missing a connection or a flight.

Then my physiotherapist got on my back. He thought a good couple of weeks of that Florida sunshine would be great for my broken shoulder. It's worse than when I arrived. He just wanted to get rid of me because I groaned to much when he manipulated my shoulder in and out of its socket. I have a low pain threshold. In other words, I groan and grunt when something hurts. No stiff upper lip for me.

My friends, looking at my depressed, dilapidated countenance urged me to go, "Just to get away from things." I didn't want to get away from anything. I loved putting out the garbage on Tuesday morning, then going back to bed. I thoroughly enjoyed my daily trip to the library. I'd begun to get used to staying awake all night and leaping up at the crack of noon for a delightful snack of the last of last night's Chinese food or fried chicken or pizza. Washed down with strong tea, it's better than many a meal I have eaten.

An old pilot friend offered to drive me down. A complete hedonist and a recent widower, like me, he really put the pressure on. I still stalled. He was disgusted. He's worked all his life... HARD, and he's going to enjoy his last years if it kills him. It was tempting, but I hung tough.

Then came the real pressure. My daughter Kim, with a recent small inheritance, after living on welfare and short spurts of work, with four degrees, and some help from the old folks, decided to head out for Florida on her spring break. She and the kids were going to see Uncle Blake in Sarasota, and expecting me to scoop them up and take them to Disneyworld.

Since I hadn't seen them since Christmas, and I like to keep track of my grandboys, I succumbed: gave up, gave in, and headed south.

I am thankful to say that my grandboys, drove my brother almost out of his nut in the two days before I arrived. They got a terrible sunburn their first day, after ignoring his advice about sun lotion and such goop. Kim knocked over and broke one of his treasures. The boys threw a ball against the screen around his pool and dented it thoroughly. The walked on his carpets with wet feet. They wanted to go to the beach when he wanted to lie down. I'm used to this, but he's not!

As a result, while his hospitality remained impeccable and extremely generous, he was smiling more and more through clenched teeth. He is used to people jumping when he says, "Jump!" I'm used to an argument such as, "Where do we jump to, Granddad?"

Away, somehow, I got conned into two days at Disneyworld with Kim and the kids. My brother had enough sense to stay home.

Dragging my arthritic old foot around, I managed to keep up with them for the first day, including rides that, even as an old fighter pilot, I wouldn't have had the guts to go on by myself. I whimpered through all of the rides once, and on the many repeats the kids and their mother elected, I declined with regrets.

Second day, I spent most of it in the shade, reading a pocket novel and people-watching. I saw tiny kids run on the concrete, trip, fall on their noses and bleed and wail profusely. I saw many oldsters charging around, on and off rides, in and out of exhibits, with incredible stamina, and a young mother, with none left, standing in a stupor, with a tiny babe draped over her shoulder and two other tykes clutching at her skirts and fussing at her through exhaustion.

Disneyworld is a masterpiece of puppets, electronic and visual marvels, and exhibits. It is also very clean, something like a giant EXPO 67... a wonderland for children! See it if you can.

Now I must seriously think about the real things in life, like my income tax forms lurking at home, frozen chicken pies, galoshes. If I linger here, I'll be faced with a host of blossoms whose names I can't even spell... jacaranda, oleander, hibiscus, etc. No red-blooded Canadian should be faced with such a choice!

1 Births

CLARKE—Bruce and Anne-Marie (nee Boisvenue) are thrilled to announce the birth of their first child, Eric Gordon, born April 19th, 1984, weighing 8 lbs. 10 oz. at Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Eric Clarke and Mr. and Mrs. Euclyde Boisvenue. Special thanks to Dr. Trant and the nursing staff.

DURING A BOAT inspection in a cabbage patch near CFB Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, Pte. Vaughn Cole and his wife Cindy found their very own "cabbage patch" kid. Her name is Ashley Margaret Elizabeth, her hair is red and was presented "at ease" on Wed., April 25, 1984 weighing in at 7 lb. 3 ozs. After counting fingers and toes, father proclaimed her "just perfect." Delighted grandparents are Betty Williamson Cole, Forbes Cole, Marlyne Brain Inlay of Guelph and Norm Brain of Calgary. Great grandmothers, Mrs. Sylvia Williamson and Mrs. Beatrice Coulson.

HENDERSON—Brian and Susan are happy to announce the safe arrival of Melissa Nicole, a wee sister for proud Billy. Born Monday, April 9, 1984, weight 8 lbs. 14 ozs. Fifth grandchild for Bert and Milly Jones and eighth grandchild for Bernice Humeff. Mother and baby doing fine. Special thanks to Drs. Galb, Banderet, McWilliams and Van der Bent, also special thanks to the nurses on 4th floor.

LAWRENCE, Robb and Cindy (nee Kerr). My sister Kira could hardly wait to have a baby brother. My name is Alexander Jay. Mom and dad will call me Jay, and Alexander is a Lawrence family tradition that extends 9 generations (thank goodness I'm a boy). My mom was happy to see the end of my 8 lbs. 2 oz. at 9:51 a.m., April 16, 1984 in Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital. She said 9 months is a long time! My dad is so proud and happy that we are both doing so well. He loves us both. I am the second grandchild of Morrey and Sue Lawrence of Toronto, Audrey and Allan Baker and Jass Kerr of Calgary. I'm the second great grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Kerr and the fifth of Mrs. Douglas Robb all of Winnipeg. I'd just like to say, I'm glad to be here! My special thanks to Drs. Ford and Bourne and all the super nurses in the maternity ward; you run a nice hotel. P.S. Love to all!

TOEBES—Jenny is pleased to announce the arrival of her baby sister, Jodie Marie, 8 lbs. 7 1/2 ozs., born on April 21, 1984 at Guelph General Hospital. Proud parents are Henry and Doris. Special thanks to Dr. Hosdill and nursing staff of the 4th floor.

WHITTEKER—Bryan and Susan are pleased to announce the safe arrival of their son, Bradley Ryan on April 15, 1984. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whitteker of Georgetown and Mr. and Mrs. Will Henkenhof of Brantford. Special thanks goes to Doctors D. and P. Zeni, Doctor Kumar and the O.B. Staff of Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital.

WRIGHT—Mike and Ann are thrilled to announce the birth of their daughter, Allyson Elizabeth, a little sister for Robert and Christopher, on Tuesday, April 17, 1984 at 3:22 a.m. Weighing 9 lbs. 9 oz. at Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Ford and the O.B. nursing staff.

3 Engagements

ANTHONY—Gable, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gable of Georgetown are proud to announce the engagement of their daughter Catherine Elaine to Randy Stuart Anthony son of Mrs. Dorothea Anthony and the late Mr. Charles Anthony of Georgetown. Wedding plans are indefinite.
