Winners at music festival

Nine Georgetown young people took honors at the recent Peel Music Festival. Tiffany Goodlet placed first in Grade Six vocal, Emma Lewzey and Natalie Shuttleworth first in vocal duet under 11 years, and Tara Hamilton first place in girls under eight class.

Second spots went to Melissa King, in the under eight vocal class, Lisa Kim in both the under eleven, and under 16 class.

Jenny Taylor won two third places, Melissa King a third place, Chrissy Cater two third places, and Emma Lewzey one third in the vocal competition.

Rosamond Smith took a third place in the Grade Three piano class.

All the contestants are pupils of Deborah Eyre Tilson.

Sumsion in town

Canadian country-and-western singer Terry Sumsion will be coming to Georgetown's Gordon Alcott Arena June 7.

The Optimist Club is bringing Sumsion and Orangeville's Linda Lee Band to the arena to raise money for various community projects funded by the Optimists.

Tickets are $10

Tom Carnahan and Sharon Merkur have more in common than their wood orientation of their respective work on display at Gallery House Sol. Both Carnahan's functional wood designs and Merkur's colorful woodcuts share a vitality and freshness reflecting their boldly experimental nature.

Rites of Spring reopens Forge

Terra Cotta's Forge Studio Gallery reopens for the season May 13 with a group exhibition entitled "Rites of Spring".

Forge proprietors Jo Walterson and Agnes Olive invite old friends to revisit the gallery, near the Terra Cotta Inn, and urge new friends to come and get acquainted a week from Sunday when the show opens with all five participating artists on hand.

A selection of Walterson's monotype impressions depicting the Caledon and Halton countryside will be featured, as will Olive's raku pottery, drawing on her recent travels in Asia and South America.

Also on display will be award-winning free form blown glass by Sheila Mahut, a recent graduate of Sheridan College's School of Crafts and Design, large "salt glazed" pottery with a Japanese influence by Larry Davidson and woodblock prints by well-known Mississauga artist Lila Irving.

The artists will gather at the Forge May 13 between noon and 5 p.m. Gallery hours are noon to 5 daily except Mondays and Fridays.
