

If only our hot air could be bottled

Because I write a syndicated column, I've been put on the hit list of some public relations outfit in New York. As a result, I receive a stream of garbage mail containing fascinating material about some product or other that is being pushed by the PR firm.

Usually, I spot it right away and toss it in the round filing cabinet without even opening it.

Today came one of these missives and, distracted by something else, I had opened the thing and read a paragraph or two before I realized it was just another piece of puffery.

It was headed NEWS FROM: The Hamburg Group. For Release: Immediately. All press releases say the latter. Anyway, I thought it would be a pitch for MacDonald's or a string quartet. It wasn't. It was a series of little articles about Hamburg and Germany, touting that city's great variety of attractions.

Such junk has about as much place in this column as an account of the origins of bee-keeping in Basutoland. And I'm supposed to print it free. What dummies these PR people are.

However, I'd already read enough to hook me on the first article, entitled: Brewery's Waste Energy To Heat Hospital. It didn't make sense at first. Why should breweries waste energy to heat a hospital, unless they're trying to make amends to all the people who wind up in hospital with cirrhosis of the liver from drinking their poison?

I took another look at the heading, spotted the apostrophe, and now it made sense. A brewery will deliver heat and hot water to a hospital. As part of its brewing process, the brewery used to end up with a lot of excess heat that must be cooled before it is released into the air. Now, instead of being wasted, that heat will be channeled into the hospital where it will be put to good use.

Cost of the deal, equipment and stuff, is about 400,000 marks, to be assumed by the city. The debt will be liquidated through the savings on energy that would otherwise have to be purchased.

Are you listening, Labatts, Molsons et al? Instead of pouring money into sports and all these phoney ads, about as subtle as a kick in the ribs, indicating that beer drinking will make your life macho, full of

by Bill Smiley

fun and beautiful girls in skimpy swim suits, why don't you channel your heat into hospitals? Think of the free publicity!

Ain't them Germans something, though? If they didn't start a war every so often and get clobbered, they'd own half the world, with their resourcefulness and hard work.

Last time I saw Hamburg was in 1944, and it was literally Hamburg. The RAF had firebombed it by night and the USAAF had pounded it by day until it was a heap of rubble. I was a prisoner of war and saw it from a train window on my way to an interrogation centre in Frankfurt.

Forty-odd years later, it has risen from the ruins like a phoenix, and is a booming city, visited by over a million travellers in 1981.

But Hamburg-Schmamburg. I'm not going to urge my readers to go there. It was the article on heating that caught my eye.

Aside from the breweries in Canada, this country has another industry that could produce enough heat so that, if it were properly channeled, we could thumb our collective noses at the Arabs. I'm talking about politics.

Town and city councils produce enough hot air to heat at least one hospital within their limits.

Provincial legislatures produce enough hot air to replace half the oil used in their provinces.

And from that vast deposit of natural gas known as Ottawa issues daily enough hot air to heat Montreal's Olympic Stadium, even though it has no roof.

And that's only touching the bases, without going to the outfield or the infield.

Think of all the hot air produced by teachers and preachers, union leaders, abortionists and anti-abortionists, public relations people, medical associations, school boards.

And there's lots more where that comes from. The squeals of those caught with a mortgage to be renewed, the moans of farmers who are losing their shirts, the bellows of angry small-businessmen: all these are wasting energy by blowing hot air into our rather frigid climate, there to be dispersed into nothing.

Add to this all the hot air that is poured into our telephone lines, that is batted back and forth over business luncheons and at parties and over the breakfast table.

It's perfectly simple. All we need is a means of bottling the stuff somehow, and distributing it to the right places. If our scientists can send a missile to Mars, surely they can find a method of storing and channeling the incredible quantities of hot air that rise in clouds over our country.

Peter Lougheed might have to cap some of his oil wells, but if somebody came up with the solution, we could not only tell the Arabs what to do with their oil. We could probably buy Saudi Arabia.

Maybe I'll drop a line to the Mayor of Hamburg, see what he suggests.

7 Cards of Thanks

CLARK, Irene wishes to thank all relatives, friends, neighbors, and colleagues at Zellers for their kindness, cards, flowers, and donations to Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital Foundation on the loss of my beloved husband Jack, also to Rev. Graham Black for his beautiful words and help, the excellent nursing staff, Wards A and B at Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital and to Doctors Richards, Browning and Bradley, and J.S. Jones and Son Funeral Home. My sincere appreciation.

Irene Clark

I WISH to thank the ambulance men who were on duty the evening I needed them, the doctors and all nurses of Ward B. Thanks to Rev. Tate and all members of Mountview Baptist Church, the Bells and Bows Seniors, and all the ones who sent cards and visited me while I was in Georgetown Hospital. Thanks again.

Phil Hayes

I WOULD like to say thank you for the kindness and care I received while in Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital from Dr. Hebart and Dr. Panabaker, and all the super nurses on ward B. Thank you to all my friends and neighbors for their good wishes and beautiful flowers, and last but not least the love and support from my family.

Maureen Brown

I WOULD like to thank my friends, relatives and neighbors for the cards, calls, best wishes and visits, for those who gave my wife rides to the hospital, to the Rev. Don Matheson, for calling to see me, Drs. Wong and Dr. Hall and the nurses on 2nd floor and 5th floor, to the Acton Legion 197, for all helping me to make my stay in hospital much better and after coming home.

Orville Brown

8 In Memoriams

COLLERTON, Chad John—In loving memory of our son and brother, who passed away June 13, 1982.

Two tired eyes are sleeping
Two willing hands are still
For one who suffered far too much is resting in God's will.

He never said good-bye to us
For perhaps it's just as well
We never could have said good-bye
To one we loved so well.
From his loving parents and sister Carrie.

CORK, Frances—In loving memory of my dear mother who passed away June 13, 1983.

"Mom" is such a special word,
A word that brings to mind,
A big warm smile, a helping hand,
A way of being kind,
A lot of understanding,
A word of patience too,
"Mom" is such a special word,
Because it stands for "You".

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by family. Will be missed by first grandchild Trevor, born February 5, 1984.

LAWSON—In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, W.J. Fred Lawson who passed away June 16, 1980. A little tribute small and tender
Just to say we still remember.
Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

SPEAR—In loving memory of a dear husband, Fred, who passed away June 10, 1979. It is sad to walk the road alone,
Instead of side by side.
But to all there comes a moment,
When the ways of life divide,
You gave me years of happiness,
Then came sorrow and tears,
But you left me beautiful memories,
I will treasure through the years.
Sadly missed by wife, Marg.

SPEAR—In loving memory of a dear father, Fred, who passed away June 10, 1979. Time speeds on, five years have passed
Since death's gloom, its shadow cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light,
We miss that light, and ever will,
His vacant place there is none can fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain
For up in heaven we will meet again.
Sadly missed by children, Gayle, Carolyn, Brenda, Nancy, Debbie, Melody, Vicki, Dick, Roy and families.

THE REGIONAL MUNICIPALITY OF HALTON PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

NOTICE

The Region of Halton is working towards obtaining an increased supply of potable water for the residents of Halton Hills (Acton). There is no problem with the supply of water at the present time. This could change during the coming summer months if a high demand is placed on the system due to unusually dry weather conditions.

Accordingly, it is requested that all residents conserve water so that it will not be necessary to impose water restrictions this summer.
