Strike holds up British pensions

Canadian residents on British pensions have not received their cheques this month due to a computer operators' strike in the British office.

"The computer operators are not very happy with the shift system they have to work under," said a spokesperson for the British Consulate in Toronto.

The operators, on strike since the middle of May, are not demanding more money, the spokesperson said.

The consulate has heard no word about an end to the strike, she said. "It's indefinite." However, the British Consulate had not heard of the strike at all until Frank and May Voss, of Acton, both receiving British pensions, contacted Acton's social services and asked if they could help find out what had happened to their overdue cheques.

Social services phoned the Consulate, but they were unaware of the delay. The Consulate inquired about the strike and a course of action for those who have not received their cheques yet.

Send a letter explaining the circumstances along with the stub of your last cheque to: DHSS, Overseas Branch, Newcastle Upon Tyne, NE981YX. This branch will attempt to get the cheque to you. If you don't have the cheque stub, send a letter explaining the situation and the amount of your last cheque.

People like the Vosses, who depend on their pensions to survive, were worried when their cheques didn't arrive and no explanation was forwarded. They knew nothing about the strike.

The Vosses are behind two cheques each.

Frank and May Voss have lived in Canada four years. They are waiting for four British pension cheques from Britain.

Overcoming anxiety

by Rev. Craig A. Cribar, M.A.
Knox Presbyterian Church

"Cast all your anxieties on Him, for He cares about you."
I Peter 5:7

Every day as I drive to my office, I begin to realize the immensity of the task that faces me in this new stage of my ministry.

As I think of the ministry that I now have in Acton, I panic a little, wondering if it will be a fruitful ministry, will my "style" of ministry be accepted by the congregation and the community? Will my family be made to feel that this is now "home"?

Why did God, in his infinite wisdom, nudge me, not so gently, from a community where my roots had been established back in 1836?

Then the words of Peter come to my mind (or is it God nudging me again?). And these words remind me of the ever-present Christ. And as I face each new day, I do not know what that day or future will bring. The only thing I can say about the future is that I just do not know what storms of crisis may blow up to rock my boat of life, as I face one challenge after another and one crisis after another. But that's life.

What a joy it is to be reminded that we can constantly receive our strength, our energy from Christ. He will never let us go. In all the storms of life, Christ is there to empower, to heal and to lead us into adventurous living. We take our strength from him and not primarily from people around us. He is our rock, fortress, and security—our God.

Each of us has to face change in our life. We have our roots pulled up, only to be replanted somewhere else. We see changes in the family circle, in our friends, in our lifestyle. But with a faith in God to see us through these changes, we are able to overcome all our anxieties through Him who cares for us.
