Riders welcome to join Cavalcade of horses

Any horse and rider can join the "Journey Into Yesterday", as the cavalcade goes through Halton Hills August 25. That's the word from Mavis McCullum, project chairman.

Equestrians from all over Ontario are taking part in the 465 mile bicentennial journey, a project of the Ontario Trail Riders Association, which may eventually establish a province-wide bicentennial trails system.

The long journey ends at Scotsdale Farm, near Ballinafad, August 25, which the Ontario Trail Riders Association, and the Ontario Esquestrian Association hope to see as an equestrian park.

In Town, the 300 mounted horses and horse-drawn vehicles will assemble at Scotsdale Farm travel up the Eighth Line, north of 27 Sideroad, go along the Ballinafad Road, and down Trafalgar Road back to the farm.

McCullum told Halton Hills council, this week, she hoped each town along the way would provide a copy of its history and wants descendants of original settlers of Halton Hills to sign a scroll in the Ballinafad store.

Each community is also being asked to provide to quilt squares with the name of the town and the year it was settled stitched into it. Later, the completed quilt wall-hanging will be shown to each participating municipality.

The house on Scotsdale Farm will not be open but a portion of the grounds will be the assembly and return point for riders and guests.

All ages are riding in the historical and heritage cavalcade with two men over 80 having covered a part of the trail.

McCullum assured Councillor Pam Sheldon the Esquestrian Pony Club is welcome to be part of the event.

...A fun time

The real Big Bird, was in Georgetown to make a Sesame St. movie this week and hundreds were there to greet him, children and adults alike. Follow That Bird is the first film adaptation of the world famous TV series which has charmed viewers for 15 years. The film stars the entire cast of Sesame Street but Big Bird is the only star appearing in Georgetown, which was rechristened Toadstool.

Hey, look! It's Big Bird!
