Ex-servicemen in need see Poppy Fund at work

More than 90 per cent of the $2,100 dispersed among area veterans by Acton's Legion Branch 197 in the past year has helped pay hospital bills and otherwise make ends meet for local families in need. That's the Poppy Fund at work. Members of Branch 197 take to the streets tomorrow (Thursday) through Nov. 11 to sell poppies and wreaths in an annual campaign that last year collected $3,328.09 in the Acton area. After expenses, the branch netted almost $1,754, and spent the balance of the year using the money to help out veterans in need. The record shows, however, that Branch 197 gave local families and some transient veterans who applied for assistance $2,158.79 between Oct. 1, 1983, and this past Sept. 30. The shortfall in disbursements was covered by a $500 donation from the branch executive last December. "Hopefully," poppy chairman Harry Norton said this week, "the public will recognize the inflation factor and realize that our veterans need more help as most of them are now entering the three-score and ten years age group when more help is often needed." With a door-to-door canvass set for this Friday, branch members are approaching service clubs, union locals, and other groups and individuals that traditionally buy wreaths and urge all people, organizations, schools and industries to consider a donation to the Poppy Fund. They can be mailed to Branch 197. "All donations will be acknowledged and, more importantly, very much appreciated," Norton said. "Collection boxes with poppies will be in most stores and business places from Nov. 1 to 11." Norton explained that money collected by branches across Canada is held in individual trust funds and can only be spent with the approval of poppy committees. Canadian ex-servicemen, veterans of other Commonwealth countries and veterans of allied forces who live in Canada are all eligible for assistance through the fund.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH DINNER
1 lb. ground beef
1/2 cup fine bread crumbs
1 egg
1/2 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
2 tbsp. oil
2 medium onions
2 cups sauerkraut, drained
2 cups canned tomatoes, with juice
Combine ground beef, bread crumbs, egg, salt and pepper; shape into small meatballs. Heat oil in heavy skillet and brown meatballs, turning occasionally. Cut onion in wedges and add with drained sauerkraut and canned tomatoes to meatballs. Simmer in covered skillet for about 1 hour. Serve with dumplings or buttered noodles.
